

MRS. A. C. WHITEHEAD 23 RESIDENCES DIES OF POISON DOSE IN CITY LOOTED WHILE REPENTING ACT IN SINGLE DAY

"I Have Acted Too Hastily," She Tells Doctors at Grady Hospital Just Before Her Death.

AMBULANCE IN CRASH EN ROUTE TO HOSPITAL

Mrs. Whitehead Had Conducted Unavailing Search for Husband for 48 Hours, Officials Told.

Distracted by worry over the unaccountable absence from home of her husband, Mrs. A. C. Whitehead, 29 years old, living at 23 East Third street, swallowed poison late Tuesday and died half an hour later at Grady hospital, morning that she had been "too hasty."

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Whitehead, apparently laboring under a great mental strain, called at the hospital and insisted upon seeing her husband, whom she declared was a patient there. When attendants of the institution informed her that no man of that name or answering the description she was able to give of her husband was there, she became hysterical, but left the institution, supposedly calmed and able to take care of herself.

"Said Husband Was Missing." According to the story the dying woman gasped out Tuesday night, as physicians endeavored frantically to save her life, her husband left the Whitehead home Sunday. He did not say where he was going and it is not known whether or not there was any motive in his unexplained and premature departure. Relatives of the victim were mute after the tragedy and little information could be obtained by the police.

When Mrs. Whitehead telephoned to Grady hospital—just after she had swallowed the fatal poison—she said: "Oh, God! I have acted too hastily. Send an ambulance quick. I am dying. Send me a doctor. Help—!" Then the connection was broken. Through the central office of the telephone company, the hospital attendant traced the call and an ambulance was rushed to the East Third street address.

Accident En Route. As the ambulance bearing Mrs. Whitehead was speeding to Grady hospital, it collided with a street car. The ambulance, badly damaged, proceeded to the hospital. No one was injured. The accident was unavoidable.

Mr. Whitehead, the missing husband, is connected with an employment firm for teachers. No information as to his whereabouts could be garnered there Tuesday night. Everywhere an element of mystery shrouded the case.

The coroner today will begin a rigid investigation.

Pauline Frederick Is Given Divorce; Tells True Name

Los Angeles, January 6.—Pauline Frederick, stage and screen actress, has been granted a divorce from Dr. Charles Rutherford, Seattle physician.

When Miss Frederick, whose true name was given as Beatrice Rutherford, appeared in court Tuesday she was heavily veiled. She testified that less than a year after her marriage to Rutherford he deserted her. The suit was not contested.

The actress' first husband was Frank M. Andrews, a New York architect. After divorcing him, Miss Frederick married Willard Mack, the playwright. When divorce ended the second marriage, Miss Frederick renewed her friendship with Dr. Rutherford, whom she had known since girlhood. She was married to him in Santa Ana.

OPPORTUNITY'S KNOCK

Duties

The man who loves his duties does not usually hate his duties. The more he does duty, the more he has of trouble. Deferred duties breed only annoyances. Duty is delightful only when it is done diligently. Dreaming on the job brings a deluge of delusions. Dodge the duties of daily life and you drive the divine from you. Duty points to burden bearing and joy remembers the duties done. It's your duty to yourself to read The Constitution. Classified Ad.—a pleasant, profitable duty that nearly everybody enjoys. LETTERS POUR IN PRAISING FIGHT AGAINST PISTOL

Will Never Sell Another Weapon, J. Weiner Writes Constitution Commending Its Leadership in Movement.

J. Weiner, manager and owner of the West Side Loan Office, 123 Peters street, will never sell another pistol. In an emphatic letter to The Constitution Tuesday, he unequivocally and irreversibly expressed his stand against the deadly concealed gun and said that he would do everything in his power to help the campaign launched by The Constitution to "rid the sovereign state of Georgia of the blot of hidden firearms."

Letters of praise for The Constitution's stand against the itinerant pistol continued to pour in and they came from laymen, professionals and homes, from all parts of the state. Here is Weiner's letter:

"We noticed in today's Constitution statements of representative business concerns in our line in regard to the pistol issue, but did not see our name among them. I would like to state that we are heartily in sympathy with your splendid effort to abolish this deadly menace and assure you our full cooperation."

"We hope to see the day in the near future when this blot will be erased from the name of our state and take this occasion to state that The Atlanta Constitution should be given the fullest praise for starting this issue."

Denounces Pistol.

Thomas L. Bryan, of the Bryan-Hatton Business college, is bitter in his denunciation of the pistol and said:

Angry Judge Scores Jury For Verdict

Twelve 'Morons' Ordered To March From Room With Freed Dope Peddler.

New York, January 6.—Twelve more or less good men and true sat silent in a jury box in the United States district court here Tuesday and took the most complete lashing that has resounded through those ancient halls of justice in many a long and sultry trial.

They brought in a verdict acquitting Tony Congo, 30, described by Judge Francis A. Winslow, as "one of the most notorious offenders in the drug traffic," and Judge Winslow then gave his verdict regarding their fitness to serve as jurors.

"If I considered your verdict as intelligent," said the judge, "I should refer this case to the district attorney so that he could indict the government witnesses for perjury. We are having an outburst of crime which is a shock to the community, and 50 per cent of these crimes are due to the use of narcotics which give the perpetrators false courage. This man is one of the most notorious offenders and you have turned him loose to continue as a menace."

The judge then ordered that Congo should join the jurors and walk out of the building with them.

LAME DUCK SAVES PRESIDENT'S FACE IN VOTE ON VETO

Dial, of South Carolina, Votes To Sustain Coolidge and Defeats Postal Pay Hike.

WAY NOW CLEARED FOR RATE HIKE BILL

Republican Ranks Split Wide Open With Party Whip Voting To Override Veto.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, January 6.—President Coolidge's veto of the postal pay increase bill was sustained today in the senate by the margin of one vote. Twenty-nine senators supported the executive, while 55—one less than the necessary two-thirds majority to enact the bill over the veto—opposed him.

With this action by the senate, the pay measure, passed at the last session, 73 to 3, died automatically. In its place will be brought forward the administration's combination pay and postal rate increase bill, but leaders generally are agreed that this measure has small chance of enactment at this session.

G. O. P. Ranks Split.

Republican ranks split wide open on the issue of sustaining the president. Opposing him were such leaders as Jones, of Washington, party whip; Wadsworth, of New York; Reed, of Pennsylvania; Moses, of New Hampshire; McNary, of Oregon, and Edge, of New Jersey. Only one of the 34 democrats voting cast his ballot for the veto. He was Dial, of South Carolina, but it was announced that Senators King, of Utah, and Owen, of Oklahoma, who were paired, would have so voted had they been able to cast their ballots.

Of the six senators defeated for reelection, five—Ball, Bursum, Dial, McCormick and Sterling—voted to sustain the veto. The sixth, Shields, of Tennessee, was absent and not paired. Two of the three new senators, Butler, of Massachusetts, and Metcalf, of Rhode Island, supported the executive, while Means, Colorado, opposed him.

The Roll Call.

To override the veto: Republicans—Brookhart, Couzens, Dale, Edge, Eklins, Frazier, Gooding, Howell, Johnson, of California; Jones, of Washington; Ladd, La Follette, McLean, McNary, Means, Moses, Norris, Reed, of Pennsylvania; Shortridge, Stanfield and Wadsworth—21.

Democrats—Ashurst, Bayard, Broussard, Caraway, Copeland, Dill, Edwards, Ferris, Fletcher, George.

DISREGARD OF LAW RAPPED BY GARY

Steel Magnate and Others To Bring Situation to President's Attention at Breakfast Today.

New York, January 5.—Arraigning American citizens for their disregard of the prohibition and other laws, Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United Steel corporation, said in a speech Tuesday night that indifference to the law and lax enforcement are a blot on the escutcheon of the country.

The speech was delivered at a dinner of the citizens' committee of one thousand, formed to awaken the nation to the menace of lawlessness Tuesday morning. Judge Gary will lead a public committee to breakfast at the white house, where President Coolidge will be told of the urgent necessity for law enforcement and of the "actual present condition" in the United States.

Mayor William A. Dever, of Chicago, who is personally opposed to prohibition, also spoke, and challenges the right of any man to disregard a law because he disapproved of it. "Witness the daily reports of crime in various localities, cities, villages and communities," Judge Gary said. "Crime is rampant. Murders, robberies, burglaries, assaults, criminal defalcations, unlawful conversions and other crimes are being committed."

Jewelry and Clothing Valued at Many Thousands of Dollars Taken in Every Section of City.

"BURGLAR SYNDICATE" HINTED BY DETECTIVES

Officers Believe That Notorious Criminals From Other Cities Are Operating Here—Losses Heavy.

An epidemic of burglaries and robberies swept Atlanta Tuesday night when 23 residences were looted of jewelry and clothing valued in the thousands of dollars.

Investigators intimated that "a syndicate of thieves" renewing operations after the holidays was responsible for depredations and declared that a wanton disregard for property was displayed. In almost every instance where houses were entered broken furniture marked the path of the thieves, police stated.

Vigorous Action Planned.

Vigorous steps to curb activities of the gang and arrest the leaders were made by detectives Tuesday night and early arrests were predicted. A dragnet to reach to pool halls and notorious dives of the city will be spread today in an effort to round-up notorious characters known to be in hiding in the city. Authorities declared that a number of men with criminal records are "visiting" Atlanta and believe that they may be responsible for the sudden flare of crime.

"Atlanta occupies an unfortunate geographical position, criminally speaking," one detective stated in discussing the robberies. "Hundreds of pickpockets, footpads and regimens from the eastern states travel each winter to Florida resort towns and have to pass through Atlanta. They usually stop over here for a few days and after victimizing citizens move on."

Losses Tabulated.

Losses from residences were tabulated by police Tuesday night as follows: Mrs. R. G. Libby, of 4 Kennesaw avenue, $500 and a $1,000 paid-up life insurance policy. Store of Mrs. O. A. Roberts, of 79

Stone Begins To Clear Desk For New Post

Speculation Rife as to Successor to Attorney General's Office.

Washington, January 6.—Attorney General Stone began a farewell drive today in an effort to leave his department of justice desk clear of all questions that possibly can be decided before he takes up his new post as a member of the supreme court.

It is Mr. Stone's hope that he can clean up all appointments now pending except, perhaps the two vacancies in the offices of assistant attorneys general. With respect to these posts, he plans to talk over the situation with the president, but it is understood he will consider nominees for them only at the specific request of the president.

The white house remained silent today respecting a possible successor to Mr. Stone, but numerous names were mentioned in unofficial discussion about the impending vacancy. The names of Charles B. Warren, former ambassador to Japan; Judge Frank Dietrich, of Idaho; Stiles Strawn, of Chicago, and Judge Arthur Rugg, of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts, were heard most frequently but no comment on them was forthcoming from any official.

There also was the rumor that Frank B. Kellogg, ambassador to London, might be brought back to head the department of justice, and that Solicitor General Beck, who will automatically take charge of the department temporarily upon Mr. Stone's retirement, would in turn, arrange Mr. Kellogg. Talk of such an arrangement, however, had no clearer complexion than that concerning other names.

15 MONKS NABBED FOR HIDING GEMS FROM RUSS COPS

Kiev, January 6.—Fifteen monks of the principal monastery here were arrested today charged with hiding valuable church property during the famine period. The valuables, which were secreted in drainage pipes, included diamonds with a total weight of 400 carats, a large collection of rubies, 1,500 pounds of silver, 60 pounds of gold and several million rubles' worth of imperial government bonds. Two huge sacks of paper money were also unearthed, police said.

G. O. P. IS BRANDED AS PLUNDER BUND BY SENATOR LADD

Insurgent Dakotan Declares Party Has Been Turned Over to Political Camp Followers.

COOLIDGE'S MANDATE IS HOTLY DENIED

Senator Edge Defends Action of Caucus in Ousting Insurgents From Council Table.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, January 6.—A sharp arraignment of the present leadership of the republican party was made in the senate today by Senator Ladd, republican, North Dakota, in a carefully prepared address dealing with the action of the republican senate conference in reading his message and Senator La Follette, Wisconsin; Frazier, North Dakota, and Brookhart, Iowa, out of the party councils.

Asserting that the curtain had not yet been rung down on this act of the "notorious" conference, Senator Ladd charged that "the camp followers of the old republican party have become the vanguard of the new republican party—leading it backward and forward from the heights where Lincoln left it when he fell."

Names "Partisan Satrapes."

"Drunk with power, and forgetting its traditions," he said, the republican party has proceeded to a surrender of the nation's money functions to "financial buccaners," and to surrender its taxing power to "tariff magicians"; has squandered its natural resources and public lands; made ventures in imperialism for the sole benefit of "partisan satrapes" and transformed the government "of the people, by the people, and for the people" into "a government of the masses by the classes."

"If to accept a republican," he added, "I am to accept and ratify, defend and promote a political policy or party that results in the accomplishment of these results—without protest—without exhausting my abilities to correct these fatal errors of the past and prevent their repetition in the future, then I cannot not qualify."

Flays Business Revival.

"If the election of a republican president with a reliable working majority in congress means nothing more than an extension for four years of an unlimited license to plunder the American people, then I can not be a republican."

"If the transfer of billions of capital values from the farms and producers of America to the swollen fortunes of monopoly, within three weeks' time, is a triumph of the republican party, then I can not be a republican."

GASTON B. MEANS HALED INTO COURT

Former Department of Justice Agent Arrested by U. S. Marshal on Bench Warrant.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Charlotte, N. C., January 6.—Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, was brought here late today to take a train early tonight for New York, having been arrested today at his home at Concord, N. C., on a bench warrant ordered by Federal Judge Lindley in New York yesterday.

Means failed to appear for trial. Means, who had been declared by himself and his physician, Dr. Joe A. Hartsell, to have been suffering recently from an acute case of gall stones, said here early tonight that he was feeling better. He was not accompanied by his physician, but a number of federal government agents accompanied him. He was in custody of Deputy Marshal M. C. Coin, of Charlotte, who was authorized to take him to New York.

Means earlier in the day had been declared by Dr. Charles Britt, representing the government, as in physical condition to make the trip. Dr. Britt examined Means for the government, after his own physician had declared he was not in fit condition to go to New York.

Orgies of Capital Life Bared by Wife of Solon

Alpena, Mich., January 6.—After a week of fireworks which, bursting on all sides, threw a lurid and often ghastly glare over alleged phases of Washington social life, the divorce suit of Congresswoman Frank D. Scott against his wife has been whisked off stage by a recess until March 10, granted to allow Mrs. Scott's lawyers to secure depositions.

And now still more high explosive is being packed into the rockets and the roman candles yet to be set off. "I've just begun to fight. My revelations of Washington society high life have just started," Mrs. Scott declared as she left the court.

"I haven't told nearly all there is to tell. In fact, my story was just started. People don't know of the things that go on behind the scenes in Washington."

"Hanging on Rope."

No gong rang as it was announced Tuesday that the story would be continued in our next. But various staid institutions centering on Washington were hanging onto the ropes after severe punishment. The picture of statesmen wrestling with problems of empire was spotted here and there with marks that old-timers said looked like gin, and some of the spectators in the court were convinced that all Washington sleeps all day and throws wild parties all night.

ALLY CONFERENCE GERMANY BRANDS ON WAR CLAIMS COLOGNE ACTION TO BEGIN TODAY AS TREATY BREACH

Winston Churchill To Propose Parley on War Debts To Be Held in Brussels in March.

Paris, January 6.—Delegations from 12 of the allied and associated nations are in Paris tonight preparing to open tomorrow some of the thorny discussions that have grown out of the peace conference which began here about six years ago.

Frank B. Kellogg, American ambassador to Great Britain, who with Ambassador Herrick and James A. Logan, Jr., United States observer on the reparations commission, constitutes the American delegation to this conference, arrived here late today. He spent the evening in conference with Mr. Logan. Mr. Kellogg will confer with Ambassador Herrick and Mr. Logan tomorrow morning before the conference meets in the clock room at the foreign office.

Winston Churchill, the British chancellor of the exchequer, was another arrival. He spent the evening conferring with the Marquis of Crewe, the British ambassador to France, and tomorrow morning will take up with M. Clementel, the French finance minister, the troublesome question of war debts.

It is said in the best informed circles that Mr. Churchill will submit to

Thieves Loot Sealed Coach Of Parcel Mail

Size of Haul Is Undetermined—Postal Agents Begin Probe.

Chicago, January 6.—Thieves broke into a sealed parcel-post car of Chicago and Northwestern Train No. 12 somewhere between Omaha and this city yesterday and escaped with an undetermined amount of loot, it was revealed by railroad officials tonight. The burglary was discovered when the train reached here at 10:30 o'clock last night. The car was sealed at Omaha in the morning and its contents and seals untouched by railroad officials or workers until its arrival here. The train made several stops after leaving the Nebraska city and postal inspectors were of the opinion that the thieves boarded the train at Omaha and left it at one of the stops before Chicago.

Omaha, Neb., January 6.—Following reports that robbers entered a mail car attached to Chicago and Northwestern Passenger Train No. 12 between Omaha and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, last night, and looted its contents, postal inspectors tonight inaugurated a search for what they believe to be an organized band of mail robbers equipped with keys to mail cars.

HUSBAND-SLAYER IS FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Defendant Tells Jury That She Still Loves Man She Slew—Claims He Threatened Her Life.

SUFFERED 20 YEARS OF ABUSE, SHE SAYS

Two Witnesses Testify Mrs. Johns Fired on Her Husband While He Was Still Seated in Chair.

Mrs. Martha Johns, who shot down and killed her husband, Charlie Johns, on the night of December 1, Tuesday night was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter by a jury in Judge Howard's division of Fulton superior court. The jury which reached a decision in 50 minutes, fixed her sentence from 10 to 20 years in the Georgia penitentiary.

Mrs. Johns received the verdict without any show of emotion. As is the custom when the jury fixes sentences, the defendant remained seated. After the verdict was read by Assistant Solicitor General John Hudson, who prosecuted the case, the jury was dismissed and court adjourned. Mrs. Johns was taken back to her cell at Fulton tower, where she has been held since the night of the killing.

Claimed Self-Defense.

The state sought to convict Mrs. Johns on a charge of murder, charging that Mrs. Johns shot her husband down in cold blood following a short argument. Mrs. Johns' plea was self-defense. In her statement to the court she declared that her husband struck her with a hammer, and that she fired only to save her life.

The first argument was made by M. E. Watson, counsel for defense, John Hudson, assistant solicitor general, waiving the privilege of opening. Mr. Watson was followed by Taylor Smith, leading counsel for Mrs. Johns, who made an eloquent appeal in behalf of the accused woman.

Attorney Smith made an eloquent appeal for Mrs. Johns' acquittal. He dramatically reviewed the accused woman's testimony, declaring that if ever a person had shot with justification and in defense of life, Mrs. Johns had done so when she fired upon her husband. He also touched upon that part of her testimony in which she charged habitual drunkenness on his part and frequent and cruel beatings.

Attorney Watson, who opened the argument for the defense, cited the fact that witnesses had testified they wouldn't believe Newell, one of the state's witnesses "on oath." He too stressed the claim that Mrs. Johns had shot in self-defense, after her husband had struck her with a hammer.

In closing the argument, Assistant Solicitor Hudson asked the jury to convict Mrs. Johns of murder. He de-

Interest Increasing Daily In Twin-Matching Contest

With The Constitution's Twin-Matching contest rapidly approaching its close, offices of the contest directors are being swamped with last-minute inquiries, touching every phase of the competition. Publication of pictures was extended through January 4 instead of December 28, and since that time appeals for back numbers have about exhausted the supply.

Interest in the contest—lively from the beginning—has mounted rapidly to fever heat. Aspirants to first prize are listed from practically every state in the south.

A continuous flood of inquiries is keeping the wires snapping from the time the contest office opens each morning until the editor quits work at night.

In an effort to clear up some moot-point a few facts concerning the contest are given below:

In the first place, all pictures printed are of TWINS—that is, they are pairs of children, born to the same parents and at the same time. They may be two sons; they may be two daughters, or they may be a son and a daughter—but, always, they are TWINS.

All answers in the twin-matching contest must be in the office of contest directors before midnight Saturday. Communications—answers or inquiries—should be addressed Twin Contest Editor, Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

As announced previously, prizes will be $300 for first, $100 for second, $75 for third and $25 for fourth prize. In event of a tie for any one position, that prize will be equally divided among the winners.

KIWANIANS INSTALL OFFICERS FOR 1925

Robert H. Jones, Jr., was installed as president of the Atlanta Kiwanis club Tuesday at the regular weekly meeting of the club at the Ansley hotel.

Other officers installed were George W. West, first vice president; Warren R. Neel, second vice president; J. Frank Fair, treasurer; and W. W. Orr, Alfred C. Newell and Hal G. Voorhis.

New members elected at the meeting included Asa G. Candler, Dudley Glass and Lloyd Larkey. They were introduced by Henry C. Heinz, international treasurer.

Dr. Harry Flynn, chairman of the round table, had charge of the program. Several standing committees for 1925 were named by President Jones.

A closing feature of the meeting was a burlesque entitled "Fixing County Salaries," which was staged by several members of the organization. The skit pictured a meeting of the board of county officers and discussions were heard by "committee members" of the board in regard to the salary system which recently displaced the fee system.

Members who impersonated salary-fixers were George West, Tom Winn, Fred Snel and Alfred C. Newell. The burlesque was an interesting feature.

The board of directors voted to appoint Fred Snel, of R. G. Dun & Co., secretary for 1925. Arthur Brooke is retiring president.

$11,000,000 GIVEN GEORGIA IN U. S. GOOD ROADS FUNDS

Georgia has been allotted nearly $11,000,000 from the national treasury since federal aid has been extended to road building. It was announced Tuesday by John N. Holder, chairman of the state highway commission.

Chairman Holder presents figures to show that the three highway divisions of Georgia have received practically the same amount of federal funds.

FOUND GUILTY

MRS. CHARLIE JOHNS.

SLAYER OF HUSBAND FOUND GUILTY

clared that she had shot her husband down, not in self-defense, but in cold blood. The major part of his argument was devoted to reading cases on record, which he compared to that of Mrs. Johns.

Defendant Tells Story.

Mrs. Johns took the stand in her own behalf in the early afternoon, telling of a married life of twenty years, filled with "abuse and torment." She testified that during her married life her husband had subjected her to physical torment, beating her frequently with any instrument that happened to be handy.

Her husband was a drunkard, she testified, and for several weeks prior to the shooting had been in partnership with another man, dealing in whisky. Johns frequently had threatened her life, she said, and on one occasion when she had told him she was going to inform the police that he was dealing in whisky, he declared he "would shoot her if she was the last woman on earth."

Says Husband Struck Her.

"My husband came home drunk the night he was shot," Mrs. Johns said. "When he came into the room he put a pistol on the dressing table and sat down and went to sleep. I hid the pistol behind a picture. When he awoke he asked for the gun and when I refused to tell him where it was, he grabbed a hammer and struck me over the head."

"He then pushed me against the wall and it was up to me to either kill him or have my brains dashed out by his hammer in his hand. Then I shot. I had to."

Mrs. Johns said, after a short pause, during which not a sound could be heard in the large courtroom, "I would have let him kill me. I loved him then and do now. I can't help it."

Johns' Friends Testify.

Mrs. Johns was called to the stand after the testimony of R. C. Smith and Jack Newell, both friends of Johns, who swore that they were in the room when the shots were fired.

Smith stated that he had gone to the house, accompanied by Newell, to pay a bill of $2 which he said he owed Johns. Johns was not there and he sat down to await his return. Smith testified.

"When he came in," Smith said, "he placed a pistol on the mantelpiece, and then sat down in a chair in front of the fireplace. An argument started between Johns and his wife, and Mrs. Johns grabbed the pistol from the mantelpiece and fired at her husband as he sat in the chair."

Smith and Newell then left the house, he said in conclusion. Newell's story corroborated that told by his companion. The "argument" between Johns and his wife, they testified, started when Mrs. Johns asked Smith about another bill of $125.

According to Smith, Mrs. Johns was informed by her husband that the bill was "none of her business," to which she replied:

"It is some of my business, too."

"You get out of here," the husband said, according to Smith.

With that, Smith said, Mrs. Johns reached to the mantel, seized the pistol and fired.

Bankston on Stand.

The first witness called was H. D. Bankston, an employee of Awtry & Lowndes, morticians, who described the wounds.

B. J. Brooks was the first witness called by the defense. He stated that he had seen Mrs. Johns a few days before the shooting and that she had exhibited bruises which, he said, were results of a severe beating given her by Johns.

He was followed upon the stand by Mrs. G. W. Morris, a neighbor, who was with Mrs. Johns immediately after the shooting, and who denied that the accused woman was "drunk" at the time.

B. R. Meadows and Hubert Meadows were introduced as character witnesses. They testified that they would not believe Jack Newell on oath.

Fannie Watkins, a servant, was next called. She stated that she was in the house at the time of the shooting, but saw neither Newell nor Smith.

GAIN OF 10,705 SHOWN IN FULTON AUTO LICENSES

The number of passenger automobiles in Fulton county in 1924 increased more than 40 per cent over those of the preceding year, according to figures just made public by Secretary of State S. G. McElendon, which showed that there were 39,523 cars in the county in 1924 as compared with 28,818 in 1923.

The survey shows that practically every county in Georgia increased its number of automobiles during the year. In DeKalb county the 1924 records show 4,873 cars compared with 3,972 in 1923. The increase in Cobb county was from 2,127 in 1923 to 2,485 last year.

CHILDREN NEAR DEATH IN BURNING HOMES

Three early morning fires Tuesday threatened for a time to sweep adjoining buildings. Quick work by firemen kept the losses down and probably saved several lives.

Mrs. Mary Coker and her seven children were carried to safety when the Coker home caught fire shortly after midnight. The family was awakened by smoke and assisted to the street by firemen. Neighbors turned in the alarm. The house was razed by the blaze. It was located at 87 Woodlawn avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Poor, 93 Catherine street, carried their infant child from their burning home a little later. They also were awakened by smoke.

Another blaze destroyed a vacant house at 271 Lucille avenue.

YARABS BLACKBIRD DANCE LURES WARDEN

Yarab temple's blackbird dance will take place at the Auditorium tonight, beginning at 9 o'clock, even if the Georgia game warden is present to investigate the presence of 3,000 live blackbirds advertised for by the Shriners in the Atlanta papers Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Officials of the Shriners expect him to be sleuthing around the stage when the "four and twenty" that were baked in a pie are set before the king in the pantomime presentation of the favorite Mother Goose rhyme; but he may be so entranced with the dancing that will accompany the presentation of the pie, or so stunned at the amount of money the king is counting while seated in his counting house that he will forget that it is against the law to trap birds.

The blackbird dance is under management of Noble Elbert Thornton, who will be assisted by Nobles Enrico Leide and Virgil Shepard in presentation of the entertainment features. "Ritz Brothers" harmony musicians will furnish music, and all nobles are directed to wear the fez. Tickets are on sale at Shrine headquarters, 190 Peachtree street, at $1 each. They may be purchased at the box office after 8 o'clock. The dance is for Shriners, Masons and their friends.

$30,000 IS ASKED FOR NEW LIBRARY BY WEST END CLUB

A request of the West End Woman's club for $30,000 with which to build a new library in that section will be presented to the new finance committee of city council Monday. Members of the club have urged erection of such a library for more than a year.

ALLY CONFERENCE
TO BEGIN TODAY

M. Clementel a proposal for a full allied conference on war debts to be held in Brussels in March. This suggestion has not yet been brought to the attention of the American delegation officially, but in any event the Americans will take no interest in any talk concerning debts.

If the French accept Mr. Churchill's proposal, there will thus probably be eliminated one of the questions, which, although excluded from the full sessions of the conference, might delay its work if discussed on the side. Some of the delegates, however, appear pessimistic as to the possibility of settling reparations problems if the question of debts remains in suspense; consequently they look for at least a partial agreement between France and Great Britain in that connection.

Debtors Keep Silence.
The allied debtors, apart from France, are saying nothing. Premier Mussolini, of Italy, is understood to have instructed his delegates to avoid any mention of the subject. The Belgians are adopting a waiting attitude.

and the Jugo-Slav and Rumanian delegates are reticent.
There is little expectation here that the United States will participate in any conference on debts. French politicians have finally come to understand that the question of debt funding is in the hands of the commission set up by congress and that there is nothing to be done except through that body.

The countries represented in the conference opening tomorrow are:
Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, the United States, Japan, Poland, Greece, Portugal, Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania. Most of the delegates, however, are not yet in the city. The Japanese delegation is expected to arrive from six to a dozen persons. Japan is the exception. Her delegate is Viscount Ishii, former Japanese ambassador at Washington.
The impression in diplomatic circles tonight is that most of the work of the conference will be done in private talks outside the council room, and that a great deal of bickering will be indulged in. The threatening outburst of the whole agenda may require three or four days of the council room, and a fortnight which had been forecast as the length of the conference.

LETTERS POUR IN

warm in commending The Constitution for its fearless stand against it. He says in part:

"Any real Georgian will join you in the fight you have started on pistols. The war must not stop. Let us go before the legislature and all other bodies who are responsible for the situation and demand action. We are the greatest country on earth—able to protect interstate commerce, enforce sanitary laws, develop water power, endow colleges, erect handsome churches, build to do every thing except to protect the lives and property of our people. Not safe for business men to keep money in their cash registers; your money or your life is common."

"More than a thousand duels were fought with pistols in early Georgia. Three presidents were killed and another one wounded with pistol bullets. Pistols were notorious on account of James—made Rube Burroughs notorious. Frank DuPre went to the gallows, a pistol was the cause. Preacher Stewart's wife is dead—pistol. Our Christmas tragedies were caused by pistols. The pistol-toters are not armed for protection but to do their enemies' work. When upstarts are fitted for carrying pistols the innocent usually have to pay the fines."

Peterson Opposes Pistol.
J. Eugene Peterson, of the Georgia Products company, is equally as opposed to the pistol and will do his utmost to make The Constitution's campaign fruitless. He says:
"For 30 years I have been a constant reader of your valuable publication. On all questions affecting the social, moral, material and political welfare of Georgia and the south you have stood for that which was right and best."
"As one of your true partisans I desire to commend and endorse your stand upon that outstanding evil, pistol-toting, along with the many other good causes which are joining you in the crusade."

"All other papers in Georgia should join in the crusade and help to mold a public sentiment that will force the legislative branch of the state government to immediate action in the matter."

"I also approve most heartily of your editorial in Monday's Constitution headed 'Good Advice' in response to Rev. Crawford's letter."
"The living conditions on most southern farms are most intolerable and should be improved; but the thing lacking most, from the viewpoint of the negro, is educational advantages. We must admit that a fair distribution of the public school fund has been withheld from them, particularly in the rural districts."

"Still another evil is the tendency to perpetuate the feeling of race prejudice, culminating often in mob violence. As you say, 'Guaranty of safety to life and property' through law enforcement is the remedy. The Atlanta plan shows that the Christian conscience has been awakened to the importance of right relations between the races. Race discrimination must be done away with through law enforcement and the gospel of human brotherhood."

"I admit this is an unpopular question to discuss, but if we allow our convictions to be stifled by adverse opinions and criticisms adjustment will long be deferred."

LETTERS PRAISING CAMPAIGN.
Here are some other letters praising

The Constitution and joining in the war against the pistol:

"Editor Constitution: I am delighted that so powerful an organ as the Constitution is after the pistol—its sale and the totter. Over 30 years ago I discontinued the sale, then a profitable line in any hardware store. A friend from the country came in the store during a holiday season to buy a pistol. He was at odds with another party, and trouble between the two parties predicted. He was drinking and bore the reputation of a 'town bully'—being big in stature and loud in talk. I refused to sell him and kindly remonstrated with him, advising him that he was in no humor or condition to have a pistol. He made a scene but I stood my ground. Going out two doors beyond he purchased a gun and shot a party who was murdered. Out on bond, he called in a few days repentant and apologetic, saying that had the other dealer been as good a friend to him as I was, that he would not then be in the trouble he was in. He was afterwards killed by his own cousin."

"The experience cured me. I quit the sale. Had I sold the pistol to the man who had shot a party, I would have felt a measure of responsibility for participation in the killing. In the many shooting down occurring in the past 30 years in this vicinity, I have a clean conscience of any blood money. Keep up your fight, and get some level headed members of the coming legislature to see that fully prepare a bill that will stand the test of the courts, that if not prohibit, will at least curtail the damage being done by the ready pocket gun."

"J. J. WHITEFIELD,
President Whitfield Hardware Co.,
Hawkinsville, Ga."

"Editor Constitution: I have been very much interested in your crusade against the pistol and wish to join you in the fight. I am a prohibitionist mainly because my father and mother taught me from my earliest childhood that liquor was a bad thing. I have never owned a pistol in my life and never saw that time when I needed one. This fact is due to my early training to live in peace with my fellow men and to my man his just due and consideration."

"I would not lay aught in the way of such legislation as will restrain the criminally inclined from the use of the pistol. I am making it this point that I am making is this: human character and human conduct are largely the outgrowth of early environment and training. There are exceptions to this rule, I know."

"I have taught in the schools of this section of Georgia for 32 years and have had a splendid opportunity to observe the changes in the customs and habits of the young people of this generation to generation and I will declare to the world that one of the greatest evils in our society is the pistol. It is a parent's duty to have the time to train their children in the fundamentals of sound morality."

"Respectfully submitted,
"R. W. HAYNE,
"Prin. Bostwick High School."

"Editor Constitution: I have been reading with interest your articles in reference to prohibiting the sale of pistols in Atlanta. This is a step in the right direction, in preventing major crimes, that you should go further and have an ordinance passed by which all pistols and other deadly weapons, taken from persons under arrest, should be confiscated and destroyed, and of the value of the owner or his relatives, as is the practice at present."

"The law regarding the carrying of concealed weapons should be rigidly enforced, and instead of assessing a fine against an offender, he should be given a jail sentence. Hundreds of young men in Atlanta make a practice of carrying revolvers, and these men are generally hanging around the pool rooms and cigar stores and they have no regular occupation. From the ranks of these men are recruited the burglars and hold-up men that infest Atlanta today. A roundup of these loafers, each one of them to receive a jail sentence, would prevent crime in Atlanta more than any other move that could be made."

"Recently, the police department instituted a crusade against the loungers in poolrooms and charged each person arrested with idling and loitering, but each one of these arrested escaped upon payment of a fine."

"FRANK E. FENN,
"Atlanta, Ga., January 4, 1925."

"Editor Constitution: I see you will decline to publish the ads for the sale of pistols in the future. This is the proper thing to do. I would be glad if all publications would take this wise course."

"No one should be permitted to carry, sell or manufacture pistols. Very respectfully,
A. T. FULLER,
Atlanta, Ga."

"Editor Constitution: I want to say I heartily endorse your anti-pistol campaign and will be glad to lend all the assistance I can in stamping them out forever."

"I am 44 years old and have never owned one, have never needed one, although I have been doing a wide country practice among negroes and sorry white men for 19 years; while, on the other hand I have been called upon many times to see wounded men and many times too late, where, if there had not been any pistols, some good men would be living today. Count on me for all I can do. Very truly yours,
H. P. SMITH, M. D.,
Pearson, Ga., January 4, 1925."

Georgia Press Comments.

And the Georgia press comes to the front with hot editorials against the pistol, as follows:

Meeting Hearty Response.
(From the Douglasville Sentinel.)
"The Atlanta Constitution's fight against pistols is meeting with hearty response. We adopted the same policy 10 years ago. The pistol serves no good purpose and should be outlawed."

Macon "Doing Right Thing."
(From the Macon News.)

"Macon people are doing the right thing when they enter the lists against the pistol."

"The News on several occasions has emphasized the necessity for immediate action for the prevention, at least of indiscriminate sale of the deadly weapon, and it begins to look as if the thought of sane people will bear fruit in the city, for movement is afoot for the prevention of the sale of pistols."

"Few decisions could be made at the present time which will have as salutary an effect on everyday life as this if it is carried through to a victorious conclusion. The eradication of an omnipresent menace to life always is a good thing, and the pistol is the instrument of the slayer. It has no other use save that of taking human life, an act which is abhorred by God and man. Therefore the people of Macon are ready to decree that it must go."

"There can be little doubt as to the outcome of the movement. Macon must not lag behind other cities of the state in this action. Always this city has been in the vanguard of progress and prosperity and she will continue to keep her place. Macon will do her share toward the protection of life and property and the integrity of being by prohibiting the sale of pistols, at least to all save those who have an indisputable right to carry them.

Well, of All Things!

Terrapins have brains of a human-like quality, declares Alex Barbee, of Savannah, Ga., owner of "Toby," the only trained terrapin in the world. His pet is seen playing a toy piano. "Toby" does lots of other clever things.

"Leaders of the movement, which has not yet taken definite form as an organization, but which is making itself forcibly felt in the city, are to be commended for their prompt action and aided in their efforts."

"The time will come, and soon, it is to be hoped, when the pistol will be denied the private citizen, relieving him of the temptation which now all too frequently leads him to murder."

Concerning the Pistol.
(From Cordele Dispatch.)

"What is it in the makeup of the politician that leads him to believe the average man doesn't know when he has on a mask? Take this pistol crusade, for example—why should the political trickster dicker and wabble and stammer about the pistol?"

"England is not the only nation in the world, but why can we not dispose of the pistol as that nation has? We need a law that would outlaw the pistol in the check of crime. It brooks no foolishness about the pistol."

"The newspapers of Georgia have written enough matter about the pistol to supply the world in argument, and yet Georgia grants a license to carry a pistol. What's the use to say any more about it, why make it an issue with the politicians who hold the offices and let them deal sincerely with the pistol-toting menace? Why not outlaw the pistol and then enforce the law?"

Prohibit Manufacture of Pistols.
(From Augusta Herald.)

"The Atlanta Constitution is conducting an active campaign against pistol 'toting' and the general use of pistols by criminals. The movement inaugurated by The Constitution is bound to bring results for the good of the country and for the protection of morals and society. The pistol has grown to be the greatest menace to the public and practically every murder is caused by its use. This weapon, 'the death toll' from the pistol has grown to an alarming state and unless there be drastic laws enacted by both state legislatures and the federal congress there is no telling where the death toll will reach."

"However, under the present laws of the state, the penalty for carrying weapons concealed is nothing more than a fine and an ordinary license. The person found guilty of violating this law simply pays the fine and continues to carry his gun. The law authorizing the payment of a license for the privilege to carry pistols is an absolute farce and the country would be better off if it was repealed. To stop the death toll of the pistol the only safe and sane procedure would be for congress to enact a law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of pistols. States should do likewise. The penalty in this prohibition law should be severe in the extreme and those found guilty of its violation should be made to suffer a sentence rather than a fine."

Bickering with the pistol 'toter' is dangerous as playing with a rattlesnake. The person who goes armed secretly is far more treacherous than an Indian and more dangerous than an adder. By this means let us urge our legislators and our representatives in the national congress to use their best efforts for the passage of such a measure."

77 Arrests in Macon.

Macon, Ga., January 6.—Police records of the city of Macon show 77 arrests for pistol 'toting' during the year 1924.

There was not a single month during the year without arrests for pistol 'toting'.

During the year defendants in three murder cases were given preliminary hearings in police court, while there were eight cases for assault with intent to murder. There were burglaries cases. One of the cases for carrying a pistol concealed was on church grounds.

Nineteen persons were tried for shooting in the city and 13 were tried for pointing a pistol at another and one was tried for shooting at another.

New Jersey, who launched the movement which led to the conference action, said the test of party loyalty was in the support of the party candidate for president. This led to a more or less general discussion, with the democrats crowding over to the republican side of the chamber the better to hear the discussion.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, one of the insurgent leaders, referring to the Roosevelt bolt, wanted to know what affirmative action would be necessary to get the senators back into the party.

Borah Questions Ladd.
Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, demanded to know if Senator Ladd had not already returned to the republican fold by his attendance at the senate conference which undertook to oust him.

"No, he has not," replied Senator Edge. "In regard to the test of loyalty, it seems to me one must at least follow the creed and viewpoint adopted by the national convention. These senators certainly did not."

What is the test? demanded Senator Borah. "We have an example here of several senators voting against the nominal leader of the party, if not the actual leader."

The reference was to the vote on overriding the president's veto of the postal pay bill.

Senator Edge replied that Senator Ladd had supported on the stump the candidacy of a man, "who, if he had been elected, would have destroyed the republican party."

Support Needs Continuity.
"Well, what's the use of supporting a man who is going to get him elected if you are going to vote against him when you get him in?" retorted Senator Borah amid laughter from crowded galleries.

Crowded from all sides, Senator Edge declared that the republicans would welcome Senator Ladd back into the party if a section of his address relative to the return of Roosevelt to the party was an indication of "your plans to march in line in the future."

Several senators sought to interrupt the New Jersey member concluded with the statement that he was sorry the republicans had to follow the lead of the democrats in "washing our dirty linen" in the open, but remarked that he had enjoyed the squabbles on the democratic side recently between Senators Bruce and Dial on the one hand and Harrison and Walsh on the other hand.

This brought to his feet Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, with cries of "No, no," and purpose to question the speaker, but Senator Edge yielded the floor amid general laughter and the incident was closed.

on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice. Federal Judge Lindley, of Illinois, was told today by Special Assistant United States Attorney Todd.

Todd told the court that government operatives had called upon Means at his home in Concord, N. C., last night and had reported to him that the former government agent apparently was in good health despite the telegraphic statement of a Concord physician yesterday that Means was seriously ill and in need of an immediate operation.

At Todd's request Judge Lindley issued an order to compel John T. McGovern, Means' former counsel, to appear before him. He already has issued a warrant for the arrest of Means and has under consideration a motion to declare forfeited his $10,000 bond.

Means was to have gone to trial yesterday with Thomas R. Felder, his one-time attorney, and Elmer W. Brown, his secretary, charged with having accepted $50,000 from officers of the Altona Glass Casket company, which they said they intended to pay to former Attorney General Daugherty and other government officials not to interfere with the concern's stock sale.

Jarnecke changed his plea to guilty yesterday and Judge Lindley now is considering a motion to grant Felder a separate trial.

Coolidge Approves Move To Authorize Questioning Of Members of Cabinet

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, January 6.—The widely advocated proposal to have cabinet members appear in congress to be questioned personally from the floor has been endorsed by President Coolidge. The white house stated Tuesday that the bill providing for this change which has just been introduced in congress by Representative Jacobstein, of New York, a democrat, would be signed if it reached the president. But the president does not intend to force its enactment and in view of the impending legislative rush the measure is not likely to get through at this session. However, such successive endorsement makes the idea stronger and it is growing gradually as the budget idea grew. In time enough support may be gathered to bring action. Many notable students of politics and governments have urged this change. Among them the late President Wilson and Secretary of State Hughes.

Coolidge Favors.

While this change would be a step in the direction of the European parliamentary system, and to that extent a departure from the American idea of keeping the executive and legislative branches separate, the president believes that this system has proved its worth in other countries.

As President Coolidge views the plan, it would be but an expansion of the present practice by which cabinet members appear before committees of congress to answer questions regarding the conduct of legislation. The proposed plan would carry the same practice to the floor and give all members of the house and senate the same opportunities to ask questions and hear explanations from cabinet officials as the committee members now enjoy.

This project has long been advocated and far back in the early eighties, a bill providing for this innovation was reported out of committee with the approval of such outstanding senators of that time as Blaine and Allison.

Idea Is Acceptable.

Progressives as well as conservatives have favored the idea. Senator La Follette believed that if this practice had been in vogue the Teapot Dome affair might have been avoided or exposed in its early stages. The senate committee spent months trying to force former Secretary of Interior Fall to appear and submit to questioning. The same issue arose in the Daugherty investigation.

While the result of such congressional questioning might be unfortunate for some cabinet officers, it would give the capable official who had nothing to conceal an opportunity to meet his enemies in the open and fight them off. He would also have the advantage in explaining departmental legislation and advancing arguments for it.

EXTENSION BUREAU HEADS REAPPOINTED

Reappointment by President W. R. C. Smith of all members and officers of the extension bureau and public committee of the chamber of commerce featured a meeting Tuesday in the chamber building. After a discussion of the "City Builder," official organ of the chamber, it was decided to continue the present form of the publication. "The Builder," which is published monthly, has a mailing list of 25,000 copies, which are sent free of charge to business concerns throughout the United States as an advertisement for Atlanta.

Editor Louis D. Newton was paid a high tribute. He will be in charge again this year.

The following members of the chamber were reappointed on the service committee: Louis D. Newton, B. S. Parker, W. R. C. Smith, James L. Holloman, John Paschal, James R. Nevin, Walter G. Cooper, Julian Boehm, Alfred C. Newell, F. J. Paxson, Walter Sims, J. R. Bachman, Paul Etheridge and Paul H. Norcross.

H. L. ROGERS ELECTED MAYOR AT COCHRAN

Cochran, Ga., January 6.—(Special.)—In the city election held here today, H. L. Rogers was reelected mayor without opposition. J. C. Smith and J. O. Lawrence were reelected aldermen and Dr. G. W. Willie, Samuel Purvis and Mrs. J. L. Paulk were elected members of the school board.

There was great interest in the election and all races were close.

Oil Explosion In Macon Home Kills Girl, 13

Macon, Ga., January 6.—Ruby Sumlin, 13, school girl, died at a hospital tonight from burns received in an explosion in her home.

The girl tried to start a fire with what she thought was kerosene. The jug in which the liquid was contained exploded and showered her with a blaze. Parents beat out the fire, but the little girl's body was too badly seared to save her life.

CANADIAN LIQUOR TRADE WITH U. S. INCREASES IN 1923

Ottawa, January 6.—Exports of Canadian liquor to the United States during 1924 increased considerably over 1923, according to a report made public today by the bureau of statistics. During the 12 months ending last November, 3,072,294 gallons of beer were shipped across the international boundary, as compared with 2,469,378 during the previous corresponding period, while exports of whisky totaled 394,745 gallons as against 381,394 gallons. Canadian customs officials say there is nothing in the Canadian act to prohibit these exports.

DUBLIN FAIR PLANS UNDER WAY FOR 1925

Dublin, Ga., January 6.—(Special.)—Negotiations are under way, it was learned today, for the greatest fair this fall in many years at Dublin. The success of the 1924 fair from a financial standpoint has greatly encouraged the local fair association after a series of fairs which cost directors a considerable sum—during the lean years just following the world war.

The grounds formerly used by the Twelfth District Fair association, and which many district fairs were held in years gone by, will become the permanent site of county fairs, it is said. These grounds are sufficiently large and the buildings are in fair shape. The athletic field, football and baseball fields of the high school are located in the enclosure and it is probable that a football game between the Dublin high team and some district school team will be booked as an extra attraction during the 1925 fair.

HOPE ABANDONED BY TWO SLAYERS

All hopes to save the lives of Willie Jones and Gervia Bloodworth, Taylor county youths, who are sentenced to hang Friday for the murder of Howard Underwood, traveling salesman, Tuesday were shattered when Governor Clifford Walker for the fourth time refused to reopen the case.

The boys' attorney, C. W. Fox, conferred briefly with the governor Tuesday morning, but his plea was in vain. The chief executive said he had been shown nothing that would warrant reopening of the case.

"The case is closed as far as my office is concerned," Governor Walker told newspapermen, following the conference. The boys' attorney has asked that the case be reconsidered, but has presented no evidence that would warrant it.

When the announcement was made that the attorney's plea had been refused, Mrs. Jones, mother of Willie Jones, broke down and cried. She refused to leave the capital, still entertaining the hope that the chief executive would listen to a personal appeal from the mother of one of the doomed boys.

The governor several days ago denied application for commutation of the sentences to life imprisonment, following action of the state prison commission, which took a similar position. However, Attorneys Homer Beal and C. W. Fox, representing the youths, secured the executive's promise Monday that he would listen to their arguments Tuesday morning.

The crime, in which the boys are charged with committing took place in December, 1923, in Taylor county and the boys are now in jail in Columbus.

PLANS MADE FOR EXECUTION.

Columbus, Ga., January 6.—Arrangements for the hanging of Willie Jones and Gervia Bloodworth Friday have practically been completed, a double gallows having been erected in Butler, according to an announcement tonight by Sheriff H. P. McGuffin, of Taylor county.

Sheriff McGuffin stated over long distance telephone to The Enquirer-Sun that a double trap had been constructed and that the boys will be hanged at the same time.

While the sheriff is arranging for the double execution, indications are that friends and relatives of the condemned youths have not yet given up their fight for the lives of the slayers.

Muscogee county jail authorities stated that Homer Jones, brother of one of the prisoners, was at the jail today and that he stated he had a petition requesting commutation of sentence which would be submitted to the members of the jury for their signatures. Jones left this afternoon for Taylor county.

During his visit at the jail he told Jones and Bloodworth that the scaffold had been erected outdoors at the side of the Butler jail. It is expected that it will be inclosed by a fence so that only those permitted by law will be allowed to witness the double execution.

The opinion was expressed tonight by Sheriff McGuffin that the execution would take place about 11 o'clock Friday morning. He desired to make no announcement yet as to his plans in connection with transferring the prisoners to Butler.

Jones and Bloodworth, apparently resigned to their fate, were in a fairly cheerful mood at the county jail early tonight. They had heard that Governor Walker again refused to grant clemency. The boys again said they were "ready to go."

The doomed boys apparently became resigned to their fate several days ago, but they continued to maintain that "while there is life, there is hope." They have repeatedly asserted that they are ready to die, but have hoped that their lives might be spared so that they could save other young men.

FATHER STILL HAS HOPE.

Butler, Ga., January 6.—(Special.) R. P. McGuffin, sheriff of Taylor county, has erected the gallows for the execution of Willie Jones and Gervia Bloodworth set for next Friday.

The gallows adjoins the jail, and is so erected that the condemned men may go from the jail to it without being seen from the outside. It is 18 feet high, with a drop of 7 feet. It is inclosed by a 16-foot board wall, with an inside space 18 by 20 feet for the officials and members of the family, should they be present.

The boys will be accompanied from Columbus by their spiritual adviser, Rev. Jenkins, of Columbus, who will be with them until the last, at the boys' request.

The father of Willie Jones today expressed hope that a commutation to life imprisonment may yet be granted.

MRS. MARION HAMBY RELEASED FROM JAIL

Mrs. Marion Hamby, sister of Herbert Skyles, alleged international crook, who has been held at police headquarters since his arrest several days ago in connection with the robbery of a Jonesboro filling station, was released Tuesday morning after her attorneys had threatened habeas corpus proceedings. Her counsel claimed that detectives had no evidence on which to hold her. The new ticket calling for a $10,000 diamond ring, which was found in her possession, is still being held at police station.

Kibler & Long sell GOOD clothes—the year around—at prices much lower than others—because:

We do a "Cash" business and do not add extra profit to take care of hundreds of charge accounts on our books.

We add no extra profit to provide an expensive service of delivery, etc.

We do not add extra profit to make a big sensational advertising program possible.

We have no sales—and do not add more profit during the season to enable us to "slash" prices along in February.

The mayor's recommendations made by Mayor Sims, in his annual message to council, are all sound and constructive.

Some are of more importance than others. Indeed, some are imperative, and should have immediate attention. To illustrate—

The problem of transportation should be settled at once, and definitely. Dilly-dallying with the issue is unfair to all interests concerned, and with a confused situation, that impairs energy and service, is unfair to the entire citizenship of Atlanta.

Adequate electric railway transportation is as essential to a city the size of Atlanta as electric power or lights, gas, or any other public utility. To say, or think, that we can grow without dependable transportation, reaching all sections of the city and suburbs, is simply displaying the rankest kind of either ignorance or prejudice, or both.

Development follows the steel rails and the transmission lines. It always has and always will.

The owners of the electric railway franchise must be treated fairly, not only as a matter of justice but as a matter of a city's economic wisdom. At the same time the citizens of Atlanta have a right to expect at all times an adequate service. Cooperation is impossible except as entered into heartily and earnestly by all parties. Seeking cooperation from the public demands proper cooperation with the public.

As Mayor Sims suggests, there should be no prejudices in the settlement of this problem, but it should be settled, for once and for all times, and without delay.

That Atlanta should own a municipal capital sufficiently large to house and coordinate all of its departments is obvious. It can be accomplished without any drain upon the treasury, or the taxpayers, by converting the present separated properties, and should be done.

It is always wise to reduce governing and legislative bodies to as small a number as possible in keeping with the tenets of representative government. It minimizes political dissension, increases efficiency, and makes the bodies more widely and workable, and less cumbersome. Cutting the general council to half would be of decided advantage.

Construction of viaducts over the Central avenue and Pryor street tracks, and the extension of Madison ave., Broad, Peters and Courtland streets, are city-wide street developments that are essential. The mayor might have gone further and advocated the proposed Alabama approach to the Spring street viaduct. Atlanta is growing with such rapidity that the traffic arteries must necessarily be made to keep pace, and especially with the constantly enlarging trading centers.

The removal of the city stockade from its present location is imperative. A pension system for policemen injured while on duty is desirable. The determination not to approve any tax increase will meet with hearty approval.

No recommendation made is of greater importance than for a consolidation of the county and city school systems. Recent surveys have shown the economic necessity for such a merger. Atlanta city taxes, based both on per capita wealth and population, are low, in comparison with other cities of like size. Fulton taxes on the contrary are higher than the average. The tax payer pays both, therefore is not the beneficiary of a low rate

In one. Most of the Fulton tax payers are tax payers also to the city of Atlanta. With a consolidation of schools—for which the county taxes largely go—the merged system will be improved for both city and out-of-city county patrons. At present overlapping, with the expense of two separate systems to maintain, not only destroys the efficiency of cooperation, but is an unnecessary penalty upon the tax payers.

In the mayor's message the only criticism he had to offer was with the administration of the city school board, and, in the light of record, the criticism was not misplaced.

The message is a strong and able instrument—a fair review and a timely forecast.

WALKING ARSENALS.

Chief of Police Jett, in commending The Constitution's fight on the pistol and promising the hearty cooperation of his department, makes the startling statement that during the three days following Christmas 300 pistols were taken from the pockets of persons arrested in that short space of time.

Think of it! One hundred pistols a day taken from prisoners in police barracks as they drop into the law grip from the homes, the boarding houses, the thoroughfares and the alleys of Atlanta. Walking arsenals, prepared to murder!

And what of the other thousands who continue to walk the streets with pistols concealed upon their persons—and concealed for no other purpose than to shoot lead into human bodies?

The menace of the pistol to the security and safety of society can not be more strongly impressed than this one record of three days' arrests in the city of Atlanta.

What is true in Atlanta is proportionately true in every city in this country. It is relatively true in the towns, and villages, and even in the most sparsely populated rural sections. Pistol carrying has become an obsession on an ebb tide of morals. And the crime wave sweeps the country like a tornado.

"Of 62 homicides in Atlanta in 1924," says the police chief, "40 were the result of pistol toting." That is to say, two-thirds of the year's homicides in Atlanta would not have occurred had it not been for the ever-ready pistol, prepared to shoot and kill. And thus it is all over the country.

Chief Jett is to be commended for his cooperation in this crusade. He declares he will hold all persons caught with pistols under $500 bonds for the recorder's court, and will prosecute a relentless war, even to the extent of searching individuals caught in the congregating haunts of the underworld.

This is the spirit that will help to win the fight. And trial judges will follow the example of Judge Calhoun and impose only long chain-gang sentences in lieu of fines will furnish a coordinating influence of inestimable value.

One hundred pistols a day taken from prisoners during three days in Atlanta! It shows the extent of this evil and the imperative necessity for its correction.

Maker of Light.
Love time, my honey.

"Goodnight!"

What the Newspaper Did.

Reviewing the work of the newspaper for 1924, The Waycross Journal-Herald says:

"The newspaper profession has been a true friend to civic progress. As day in and day out during the year we have scanned the pages of our exchanges we have found them steadily battling for civic improvements."

"We have noted how they have given liberally of their news space to the public movements, to reports of meetings of public organizations, to all plans proposed for the development of the city in which the paper was located."

"We have noted further how they have been a leader in thought and action in the public good with editorial comment."

"Yet further we have seen how many of these movements have been initiated by the papers. The papers have been a leader in thought and action in the public good with editorial comment."

"It is an appreciated gift from 1924, this memory of the worth of the profession to which we belong."

Don't Take Your Troubles Along.

I.
Looking to the Morning,
Hearing the Morning's song,
If you'd whistle and sing to the New Year,
Don't take your troubles along.

II.
Leave them with the shadows,
Where thick the red thorns throng.
With the bloom in his cheeks the New Year speaks—
"Don't take your troubles along!"

Keeping in Touch.
The Lafayette Journal and Courier says of "The Wise Farmer"—a little story with a moral—

"An old farmer who remembers St. Anne buggies, homespun clothes and copper-toed boots, comes to town now and then."

"Hello, there, what are you doing in town?" we ask.

"And always he answers, 'Oh, I just came in to get the correct time. I want a wise twinkle in my eyes as he says it. For he gets the 'correct time' in many ways, summed up in the expression 'keeping abreast of the crowd and the times.'"

The average farmer comes to town regularly to find out what's going on in the way of improvements. It would be mighty profitable for us all if the city man went to the country occasionally to get a line on the industry that feeds him."

Make Sure of Him.
I.
When Good Times say,
"I've come to stay,"
Don't make too sure of that.
When the good times say,
"I've come to stay,"
And he takes his place
And hide-and-his his place.

II.
Don't let him run
From sun to sun.
Or kick his heels at the moon;
But hold his ground
With a "hands all round!"
And keep the world in tune!

Telling About It.
"Life on a farm," says a Missouri weekly editor, "is not as dull as the city editor would have us believe. For instance—"

"Here is Marcus Caldwell, out near Greenwood, who has bath, heat, lights and a radio. He can sit down any night with his wife and two boys and bring the world to his fireside. There is nothing the small town has that he can't get, and that is going to be the model of the future farm home. However, he says, it took a fire and a new house to do it."

Red Hot!
This is rather a warm song to start the New Year with—
"Hot time here—
'Tis a world amazin',
And over there
A new world blazin'!"

This, on the authority of E. M. Lord, of the Osborne Enterprise—
"The man who says he can't live on $25 a week now and save a little is not a financier—he is a liar."

Says the Deacon.
Never mind about "genius," my son. If you have it, all well and good, but you haven't got it. And I like the next best thing to do.

"West Virginia," says the Philadelphia Record, "might have had a president, and it is content with a secretary of agriculture."

Justin Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

Two Georgia white boys will pay with their lives on Friday for the errors of their ways—unless the governor, who has repeatedly refused, finally intervenes—

And a kind-hearted, Godly mother of one will pay an even greater price for a too-easy indulgence.

She has trudged, back and forth, begging for clemency. The sympathies of all persons with understanding hearts go out to her.

It is a lesson burned in with fire. But she has learned it too late.

Maybe other parents will take heed before it is too late.

America is crime-swept today. And even more distressing than the crimes themselves, and more hazardous than the blood-strewn paths, cut out by criminals along which the innocent must travel, is the startling fact that an overwhelming majority of the major crimes are committed by mere girls.

The criminals of today are the young people of today! What a confession! And why?

Indulgence! And more—

The new life; the new system of social license; the rebellion against legal restraints that modern society does not approve; the swinging of the pendulum to another extreme; the open and unafraid violations of one law that makes callous the conscience as to all laws; the force of bad example; the suggestion of wrong influence; the low ebb of personal morals.

The father brings liquor into the home. He violates the law more than the man who makes it. He commits one crime—measured by law—directly, and committed another. The son knows it. He is unwittingly helped by parental license, to go and do likewise.

The mother appears at some function dressed like the chorus girl in a ballet. The daughter is given the same license.

The son and the daughter become companions. Youth seeks youth. The night air is zephyr-laden. The moon is soft. The shadows are romantic. The road is inviting. The automobile is ready. The hip-pocket is bulging. One drunk! Two! Three!

It must end somewhere! Too often it ends in crime. And one crime begets for another. Self-respect is sacrificed. The anchor is drawn. Adrift!

This is not a picture of the majority. It is that of a minority. But the troubles of the world are caused by minorities.

The lesson of loving restraint—not dogmatic, not arbitrary, not repelling, but reasonable restraint!

All parents might well learn it whether we need it in our own homes or in the streets of the city.

The tender little plant reaches out for the sunlight—not for the darkness.

Is it harmful for an expectant mother to wear a corset all the time? (Mrs. T. V.)

Answer—Yes, better omit corsets unless your physician advises them.

Soft Eggs.
Do soft boiled eggs give you a clear voice? Is it all right for a singer to take them? (Mrs. T. V.)

Answer—It is not dangerous to put them in the stove and shut it off for the night without letting the gas burn off first. I always thought it was safe to let the gas burn off before closing the draft for the night. Please explain about this. (Mrs. C. J.)

Answer—It is not dangerous to put on coal or bank fire for the night and then immediately close the draft. The dangers from coal gas are three: (1) If the fire or stove becomes red hot the poisonous odorless carbon monoxide may escape through the red hot stove. (2) If the stove becomes red hot the poisonous odorless carbon monoxide may escape through the red hot stove. (3) If the stove becomes red hot the poisonous odorless carbon monoxide may escape through the red hot stove.

Is tea harmful? I drink a lot of it, very strong. It seems to be a habit with me. In the morning I have a bad taste in my mouth and a sour stomach. (Mrs. T. V.)

Answer—An excess of tea or coffee is harmful, though a cup or two of either or both daily is not harmful to adults. A rule of thumb is to have no more than two cups of tea or coffee a day.

HOOPER WILL CALL TRAFFIC COMMITTEE

Washington, January 6.—Secretary Hoover will call early in February a meeting of the general committee created by the national conference on street and highway safety which met in Washington in December and formulated resolutions looking to uniform safety methods for traffic handling.

The recommendations of the conference have been submitted to all states and the committee will determine whether any changes in the standards proposed are advisable and whether progress has been made toward the adoption of the principles recommended.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

HAROLD WRIGHT WRONG.
An old circuit-riding quack who used to make the small towns about once in six weeks always ran a column in the weekly paper announcing his visit and enumerating all the diseases he was master specialist in. He made a special appeal to the chronic tuberculosis sufferer. The rigmarole ran something like this: "Pronounced by his medical brethren an incurable consumptive Dr. Bradshaw began researches in Europe and America which after many years culminated in the discovery of his great specific."

George Milton and his collaborators are writing "Figuring Backward."

It might be well before Mr. Milton seeks to discuss the future of the democratic party in the light of history, to run up a bit on his history.

He includes the fight in New York in 1892 "when Tammany was so anti-Cleveland that Dr. David Jayne Hill became the choice of the delegation."

That's news!
Dr. David Jayne Hill has always been a republican. No man in America was a stronger opponent to Mr. Wilson's foreign policy during the senate fight on the Versailles treaty.

Possibly upon reflection Mr. Milton will find that he should have said "David B. Hill."

The latter was governor of New York in 1892, and was a prominent member of the delegation to the national democratic convention that year.

Until our Chattanooga friend and his collaborators get straight on his story he will do just as well to pass it up—not without the hope, however, that president-makers for 1928 will at least give a rest to a year or two so that we may get our wind, and business can catch up.

The "Swanee" River floated every day from the pit of the Arcade Tuesday as the blind violinist accompanied the singer. It has been sung into immortal fame the world over.

And yet the United States Geological Survey comes along in its report to congress, just issued, and declares that it is "no river at all," but merely a drainage outlet for the Okefenokee swamp.

Many centuries ago the vast area now embraced in the Rocky mountains was a sea.

Hard to believe, but if one goes into the Smithsonian institution in Washington and sees there the skeletons of the monster sea animals, some almost as large as sailing ships, excavated from the Rocky mountain valleys, all skepticism will pass.

South Georgia, centuries ago, was a sea.

Charlton county of today, according to scientific research that is indisputable, had a depth of water above it of about 250 feet.

When the sea, in the course of changing nature, receded, islands sprang up. Hence the sea islands of the Georgia and Florida coasts.

Following the recession of the sea the present Okefenokee swamp was left winding their way to the sea.

These islands drained and the shoals filled. Hence in the course of time the sound gave away to the swamp.

Now comes this government agency in the person of a geologist, and of our romantic ardor by saying the "Swanee" is just an outlet to a swamp, and that real rivers must spring from mountains.

There must be something wrong about that. The Okefenokee is a respectable river and that springs from under the Ku Klux Klan.

The Kimball house is a tower of political hopes for some and a valley of political despair for others, but it is no mountain.

At any rate, whether the dear old "Swanee" is a river or not, Foster made it so in his melodious lines—

Cancer and Terror

BY VERNON KELLOGG, Head of the National Research Council.

The clear light of truth is shed by Dr. Kellogg on the real condition of cancer. It is serious, but there is no occasion for nationwide panic.

The newspapers and magazines are giving wide publicity to news, some of it true and some not true, about cancer. Now it is all very well to call the attention of the public to the seriousness of cancer, but it is not well to create a state of terror or panic.

In the first place we should know that the statements and figures given for material recent increase in deaths from cancer need critical scrutiny. They cannot be accepted at their face value. The figures given for earlier years do not include all deaths from cancer. Many deaths recorded as due to "old age" were in reality cancer deaths. With increase of knowledge and better diagnostic methods cancer is now more readily discerned. The older figures, used to determine an average death rate, are also not perfectly comparable with the figures of later years, because of certain differences in geographical and age distribution of the recorded deaths cases.

At best, however, the figures are laid; they put cancer on a plane with such murderous diseases as pneumonia, tuberculosis and kidney affections. But there is nothing in this which need cause panic.

Cancer is not a infectious disease. It does not sweep over the country as an epidemic. It is not even caused by a germ. At least, it is not proved that it is. Nor is it a definitely heritable disease.

What cancer is, is well known. What actually causes cancer is not known.

There are many reputed and advertised cures for cancer. Some are successful. Some are honestly believed in by their more or less ignorant originators. The real cure for cancer will probably not come until the real cause for cancer is known. Scientific men are working hard at the problem. It will be solved.

But in the meantime there is no occasion for panic. Panic may mean death from fright of cancer where cancer itself does not exist.

What cancer is, is well known. What actually causes cancer is not known.

There are thousands of women who spend several hours a day in the beauty parlors. Each new treatment is a new day and night shock in the knowledge that when beauty fails—it is the quick curtain. So they wage the desperate warfare.

Impecuniosity is traditionally associated with the theater. Yet there is no improvement in late years. A certain day and night shock in the knowledge that when beauty fails—it is the quick curtain. So they wage the desperate warfare.

DEFICIENCY BILL PASSEY BY HOUSE

Washington, January 6.—An emergency deficiency bill carrying $157,000,000, which would be available for immediate expenditure, was passed late today by the house and sent to the senate.

An attempt was made by Chairman Madden, of the appropriations committee, to attach an amendment to the bill providing $500,000 for defraying the expenses of the president's agricultural commission. But it went out on a point of order by Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas.

Major provisions of the bill, in addition to the inland waterway corporation item, are $150,000,000 to be used in refunding internal revenue taxes illegally assessed and collected; $3,333,333 for continuing work on dam No. 2 at Muscle Shoals, Ala.; $275,000 for eradicating reported epidemics of bubonic plague among rats at New Orleans and Oakland, Cal.; and $150,000 for repairing the coast guard cutter Manning to make her seaworthy.

An amendment to eliminate a section carrying $14,000 to pay expenses of messengers bringing the count of the electoral vote to Washington was rejected on a point of order. Representative Cable, republican, Ohio, its sponsor, urged that the vote be transmitted by registered mail as an economy measure.

The house devoted today entirely to the deficiency bill, laying aside until tomorrow the army supply bill.

During the year 1923 tags were issued by the Georgia department of agriculture for a total of 673,207 tons of fertilizer. Up to October, 1924, tags had been issued for a total of 673,201 tons. It is stated.

RHEUMATISM PAINS ARE NOW IN SEASON

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly, keep the feet dry, avoid exposure, and above all, drink plenty of good water and avoid eating sweets of all kinds. Rheumatism is caused by body waste and acids resulting from poor fermentation. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood and cast it out in the urine. If the kidneys are weak, the waste and acids are not eliminated, and the result is rheumatism. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do extra work. To keep some weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this waste and acids, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first tingling of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. The salts will neutralize acids, remove waste matter, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus often rid the blood of rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.—(adv.)

AL. H. BRANDHORST IS ASSASSINATED

With every burner in the kitchen range of his home at 47 White Oak avenue wide open and emitting flames which filled the house, the unconscious body of Adolph H. Brandhorst, a produce broker, was discovered late Tuesday by his 18-year-old daughter, Marjorie, who had just returned from a shopping tour. The doors and windows in the kitchen were tightly closed.

The victim never regained consciousness, dying a few minutes later on the way to Grady hospital in an emergency ambulance.

Coroner Paul Donohoe today will conduct an investigation into the death of Mr. Brandhorst, whose wife is visiting friends near Cincinnati. Mr. Donohoe set the inquest for 9:30 o'clock this morning. It will be held at the police mortuary.

In addition to his widow and daughter, the victim is survived by a son, Fain, 17.

Funeral arrangements will be announced upon the arrival in Atlanta of Mr. Brandhorst.

Police authorities are convinced that from the obvious circumstances, Mr. Brandhorst was a suicide, it was stated Tuesday night. No motive for the act has been learned, however.

STANDARD GRADING OF COTTON URGED

Washington, January 6.—Investigation of the big tobacco trade organizations by the federal trade commission was urged by Aaron Sapir, of Chicago, in an address today on legislative and governmental aspects of the cooperative marketing problem before the National Council of Farmers' Cooperative Marketing associations.

The cooperative movement, he asserted, now needs the administrative support of the government rather than more laws. He expressed opposition to the National Association of Manufacturers, which he charged, by five members of the retiring governor's staff and five members of the governor's staff, as well as by five members of the retiring governor's staff, as well as by five members of the governor's staff.

Most of today's sessions of the convention was taken up with discussion of technical phases of the movement.

Urges Standard Grading.
Theodore Price, of New York, editor of Commerce and Finance, advocated the standardization of cotton grades, and urged uniformity of marks and the exact quality indicated by the grade. This, he said, should increase the value of cotton bales, make sales easier and diminish the sending of samples and dispatch.

C. O. Moser, of Dallas, secretary of the Texas Farm Bureau, called for legislation to standardize cotton grades, and urged uniformity of marks and the exact quality indicated by the grade. This, he said, should increase the value of cotton bales, make sales easier and diminish the sending of samples and dispatch.

Farm Commission Seeks Way To Aid Livestock Men

Washington, January 6.—The president's agricultural commission, continuing its concentration today on the endeavor to devise legislative assistance for the live stock industry.

R. A. Cooper, commissioner of the federal farm loan banks, who heads a group of farm bank presidents that conferred with the commission yesterday, was closeted with the members of today. Chairman Robert D. Carey has announced that any proposals for financing the cattlemen would be drawn to meet the approval of the bankers, but no member of the commission would say tonight what cause was being considered.

While the commission conferred with Mr. Cooper in the afternoon, some members unofficially attended the session of the national council of farmers' cooperative marketing associations. The views of leaders of the council are to be sought by the commission when it takes up the marketing phases of its work.

John M. Sparks, president of the Fort Worth Cattle Loan company, appeared before the commission for a short time and other cattlemen bankers and cattle men of long experience are expected to be invited to appear.

MARTIN INAUGURATED GOVERNOR OF FLORIDA

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Tallahassee, Fla., January 6.—John W. Martin, son of Martin County, by birth, but of Jacksonville by adoption, where he was three times mayor, was sworn in at noon today as governor of Florida for a four-year term.

Immediately after Governor Martin's inaugural address, which required but a few minutes for delivery, and the firing of the governor's salute, he was escorted to the executive mansion by five members of the retiring governor's staff and five members of the governor's staff.

The incoming governor's inaugural address was brief, but significant. He spoke of his predecessor, as he spoke, his ill wife, still occupying the closed car used in the parade, said immediately in front of the parade platform, paying close attention to his every word.

Governor Martin told the people that the office of governor was theirs and that it "shall be open to all and that the office belongs to you and it shall be conducted as yours," he said.

"It will not be necessary for the people to speak to me indirectly, through the newspapers, or in any group of men," he added to the cheers of the crowd in front of him.

Does Not Remember Wedding to Atlanta Girl, Says Hughes

Baltimore, Md., January 6.—(Special.) William K. Hughes, 27, was not sure he ever loved her, he married Grace Robinson, 19, Tech high school graduate of Atlanta, according to testimony given by him and Hughes in his automobile later today.

Hughes, former manager of a company branch at Greenville, S. C., is alleged to have brought the Atlanta girl to Baltimore from Greenville in his automobile later today.

The one big trouble with the marriage was that Hughes already had a wife and two children in Salem, New Jersey.

Alienists testified today that Hughes went into the second matrimonial venture because he was temporarily unbalanced as the result of a long and an alleged embezzlement from a Greenville company. Hughes himself, as a witness, denied all affection for the girl and asserted that he did not know that he was married to her until a week after the ceremony.

The girl's brother is attending the trial of Hughes and at its conclusion intends to take her back to her home in his home on Capitol avenue, Atlanta.

Members of Miss Grace Robinson's family could not be located Tuesday night, to ascertain any further information concerning the wedding.

CONTEST IS FILED FOR BROOKHART SEAT

Washington, January 6.—Notice of a contest against the election of Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, was filed in the senate today by Luther A. Brewer, republican independent candidate in the Iowa senatorial election.

EDUCATION BOARD TO MEET TONIGHT

A pledge to cooperate to the fullest extent possible with city council during the year and to abstain from any criticism of council is contained in a resolution adopted unanimously by the board of education in special session Tuesday afternoon.

The resolution, which was introduced by John T. Hancock, president of the board, was adopted by a vote of 10 to 0. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 10 to 0. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 10 to 0.

While the tentative budget, which also was discussed by the school board Tuesday, states that $3,077,318.03 will be necessary for efficient operation of the schools this year, that figure, however, includes a deficit of slightly more than $800,000, in addition to the $350,000 borrowed last year to meet operation of the schools during September and October.

Board members, although it is probable that the full amount set forth in the budget will be asked, expressed the opinion that if council appropriates as much money for schools as last year, the system can be operated successfully in 1925. Of the $3,400,000 budgeted in 1925, more than half million dollars was used in building the new Senior High school for girls and on a new unit for the Henry W. Grady school.

Training for a national open tournament is decidedly different from preparation for any other sporting event.

The prizefighter, wrestler, baseball player, football player or track athlete, for instance, must pay a great deal of attention to superhuman physical training, to wind, to speed, to endurance, to a deliberate sport, speed scarcely enters into it. CHICAGO MYSTERY WOMAN MAY BE FORMER ATLANTAN

Chicago, January 6.—Chicago's mystery girl, found several months ago lying unconscious on the floor of a rooming house, and apparently suffering from loss of memory, according to word received here today from an Atlanta police captain and Mrs. E. L. Shepard, of Chicago, who disappeared about a year ago. Those who professed to know her said they had identified her from newspaper photographs.

The girl, who has been partially identified a score of times, declared, however, that she was sure she had never been in the south, although she cannot remember her name or where she was taken to a hospital, said she believes her first name is Charlotte and thinks her last name may be Norris.

COBB'S LIFE STORY Chapter XLV.—A Dual Personality—Polish, Culture, Suavity—Temper and Self-Interest.

BY H. G. SALSINGER.

The make-up of Cobb is complex. His is a dual personality. In him we find a man who at times has the polish, the gloss, the culture, the hearing and supreme suavity of a George Brays (Beau) Brummel and at other times, when he loses his temper and lashes into a wild fury, he resembles the Bill Sykes of Charles Dickens' Oliver Twist. His composition is of Jekyll and Hyde construction.

There is no middle ground with Cobb, no in-between, no temperance, no moderation. He is one extreme or the other; at times he is a supreme optimist. Always is a creature of varying moods.

A recruit, who had just met Cobb, told a veteran player that he regarded Cobb as the finest gentleman he had ever met.

"You're just different after you've felt the lash of Simon's whip," "What Simon?" asked the recruit. "Simon Legree Cobb," the veteran informed him.

Mellowed—Slightly.
The passing years have in a measure tempered Cobb, mellowed him. He has become more and more of a philosopher. He is no longer so much of a still fella although not as frequently as of yore.

In his long career his disposition has been a lean of trident nature. He never was able to stand reverses with good grace. He often expressed a selfish nature and too frequently lacked sympathy.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACE CAMPAIGN TO BE HELD IN ATLANTA

Pirates Pin Pennant Hopes on Ten Hurlers
Dreyfuss Believes Trades Will Aid Club's Strength; Morale Is Also Improved

BY KENNETH L. EAGON.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who lost the 1924 National league pennant by one fatal series with their aged and bitter enemies, the crotch New York Giants, will start the major league baseball season in April with the pick of the pitchers of the old league.

No less than 10 worthy hurlers, eight of whom have made good big up there in the big time, and two youngsters who have shown they have the makings, already have slammed their John Hancock on papers that automatically place them on the payroll of the ambitious and qualified Mr. Barney Dreyfuss, president and owner of the Pirates, who has been fighting to bring a flag to the Small City for several years and is utterly confident that he will head the money list next October.

The writer shares the belief of Dreyfuss that the recent trade with the Chicago Cubs, in which the Pirates gave Wilbur Cooper, pitcher, "Rabbit" Maranville, shortstop, and Earl Grimm, first baseman, in exchange for Vic Aldridge, stellar slasher for the Cubs last year, George Grantham, crack second-baseman and the veteran Bert Niehaus, first baseman, will greatly help the Pirates, not only in batting and base-running, but also will improve the morale of the club.

Dissension Costly.
It is a known fact that there was considerable dissension among the temperamental Pirates last year. The feeling developed as the season progressed and Dreyfuss had his hands full. Pittsburgh fans openly declare that if the Pirates had been all pulling together in the critical days of September and October, they would have come in first by a large margin. As it was, they licked everything they met and went into the big town neck and neck with the league leaders. They lost four straight games and the pennant, for they could not recover this lost ground in the short time they had left.

Wilbur Cooper undoubtedly will be a loss to the Pirates. When Cooper felt right, there was no man who could outpitch him. Alexander, Walter Johnson and the rest of the league's leading pitchers. But Cooper was temperamental and it was said that he did not get along with the management of the Pirates. Even at that, he was one of the league's leading pitchers.

However, Vic Aldridge is a boy wonder. He was partly responsible for the remarkable showing made by the Cubs last year—a mob of youngsters, half of whom were just getting over the stage-fright of big league doings. Aldridge won most of his games and, with the wily veteran, several other Pirate hurlers. The writer believes he will win as many, if not more, games than Cooper, for the Pirates this year.

The writer is certain the morale of the Pirates will be improved with the departure of "Rabbit" Maranville, who, like Johnny Evers, is a great ballplayer. He still is and probably will be throughout 1925 for the Cubs. But George Grantham, a youngster, set Chicago ablaze last year with his scintillating plays and fine base-running. He will cover some of the Pirates' holes and, oh baby, how he can hit!

Niehaus at First.
Bert Niehaus will be a good man at the initial sack for the Pirates. He's old and tried and will serve as a solid powder for some of the youngsters. He will be backed up at the first corner by Fins and Blue, two corking good infielders, the specially capable first, in case the old-timer doesn't hit the apple.

Returning to the subject of pitchers, the enthusiasm for the Pirates gets so hot it burns upon Emil Yde, so prodigy, formerly of the wilds of Oklahoma, who really lives in Freeport, Illinois. Just as well, his name is Yde. Yde does not only lead the Pirate twirlers in won, games, and is not among the first six in the National league, I'll buy the hopes for a double-header.

Savannah, Ga., January 6.—(Special.)—The Savannah Athletic club's basketball quintet defeated the University of Georgia's five here tonight by a score of 38 to 33. The return of Ed Gurr, local boy, to the lineup of the Atlanta club, helped the team considerably, but could not offset the fast playing of the Savannah players.

Mickey Walker Seeks Crown
Up of Mike McTigue Tonight

New York, January 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—Mickey Walker, world's lightweight champion, will climb two steps out of his class tomorrow night when he meets Mike McTigue, world's lightweight champion, in a 12-round no-decision match in the Newark armory.

The welter king has everything to gain and nothing to lose. By knocking out McTigue or winning on a four-point decision, Walker will be crowned world champion. On the other hand, a knock-out victory for McTigue would still leave Walker king of the 147-pounders, as the lightweight champion is not eligible for the welterweight division.

Seven Pounds Difference.
Although the men are two divisions apart, there will not be a great difference in their weight when they step into the ring. McTigue, really a middleweight, will scale near the 160-pound mark, while Walker will come in around 153.

Two spots occurred in the Sunday School basketball games on the Y. M. C. A. court Tuesday night when the Wesley Memorial team won from Gordon Street Feeds, 24 to 20, and F. E. F. won from Pep Class, 24 to 12, in games that were doped the opposite way. Inman Park ran away with Central Baptist, 36 to 16, and Westminster defeated Anchor Feeds, 19 to 13, in the other games.

The feature game of the evening was between Gordon Street Feeds and Wesley in which the Wesley boys completely outplayed in every respect the Gordon Street team. Wesley started off with a beautiful passing game in the early part of the game and soon piled up a lead that was never really threatened until the final moments of play when Wesley played an entirely defensive game.

Long Shots Win.
The work of McTigue's Carpenter was the bright feature of the game and it was the long shots of Carpenter that spelled defeat for the Gordon Street team. He was looping baskets over every part of the court, and distance seemed to be a second consideration as his shots seldom ever touched the sides of the hoop. The guarding of Copeland and Chandler was so good that they could not get near the basket, and only a small part of the attempts reached their destination through the hoop.

Gordon Street had many attempts to score but seemed to lack the accurate eye that graced the Wesley team last night.

If Walker succeeds in stopping McTigue within the 12-round limit and thereby winning the world's 175-pound crown, it will be the second time in boxing history that a fighter has held two titles in such widely separated divisions. Park was on the long end of a 22-to-6 score.

In the second half Inman Park sent in a scrub team that continued to pile up field goals and when the game ended the substitutes were still ahead of the Central Baptist team. Ranking at forward with 13 points, and Ferguson at center, with 7 points were the stars of the game. Although he made only 7 points, the wonderful play of Ferguson was a bright feature of the game. New York, January 6.—The New York Yankees today announced they would take a squad of thirteen pitchers to their training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., this spring, including six survivors of the 1924 squad and seven newcomers. The club also announced it had released Pitchers George Pipgras to the Atlanta club of the Southern association, and Walter Roetger to the St. Paul club of the American association. Al Maunax, veteran hurler, who saw most of his service in the National league before joining the Yankees, also will be released to a class AA club soon.

Park was on the long end of a 22-to-6 score.

In the second half Inman Park sent in a scrub team that continued to pile up field goals and when the game ended the substitutes were still ahead of the Central Baptist team. Ranking at forward with 13 points, and Ferguson at center, with 7 points were the stars of the game. Although he made only 7 points, the wonderful play of Ferguson was a bright feature of the game. Evans played the best game for the losers.

Finland Speed Marvel
Cops Mile Run and 5,000
Metre Race at New York.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Madison Square Garden, New York, January 6.—A little blue trot-out model from Finland, a compact little running little machine called Paavo Nurmi, went around and around the Garden track in new world record time in two races Tuesday night, the most amazing event's work ever reeled off by a footracer under this roof, or perhaps, any other.

With his time feet thrumming merrily on the hollow boards of the wooden track Nurmi, the man who won four Olympic races and three here at Columbus last summer, covered the mile in four minutes, 13.5 seconds and 5,000 meters in 14:44.3 seconds.

In the mile race Nurmi not only beat Joie Ray, of the Illinois Athletic club, holder of the old world's record of four minutes, 14.3 seconds, but beat him so easily that Ray for once in his life was almost successful for an alibi. In the 5,000 meters after an intermission of something over an hour, he clipped almost ten seconds from the old indoor mark. In minutes 14.44 seconds, also made by Ray.

Boards Unharmful.
Until Nurmi came on the track shortly before 9 o'clock to start the mile race, there was some doubt in his own and some other minds as to whether his feet would wobble with their usual abandon on the unyielding surface of the planks, for he had only practiced a few times on such going and had never yet faced a starter indoors.

Before they had gone half the distance it was apparent from a runner's stride that he had a formidable sprint reserved within those well shaped, tapering legs of his and that Ray was permitted Ray to make the pace for much of the distance, shot the juice into his ankles and streaked away from the Chicago caddy like a taxi passing stalled laundry wagons. Ray knew he had not the run left in him to overtake the light blue jersey that was swinging along before him, but he did not give up. He put all he had into a burst of speed in an effort to overtake Nurmi but Paavo calmly looked back over his left shoulder, sized up the situation and trotted along along the inside of the track, his line in quicker time than any other runner had ever covered a mile indoors.

This huge crowd which jammed the galleries of the garden and hung draped over the balcony rails, shrilling crazily in a tongue that was just gibberish to the glum little Finn, was not the only one who was surprised. Nurmi, who had just trotted down the end of the building, picked up his gym stuff and got on going to the dressing room for his sub-down.

When he was called back for his second record-breaking lunge along to tread the end of the evening, Willie Ritola, another man, a leggy individual, a runner of long string, long hair and knees like doorknobs, was picked as the one to crowd Nurmi and perhaps to beat him, inasmuch as he seemed to be the best of the long stringers on the track. Before the race was over, however, he was not to board tracks either. But it was just plain ridiculous.

Nurmi left Ritola make the pace almost all the distance, something less than three miles, following him so close that they seemed to be in lock-step formation. Ritola striding and Nurmi trotting, his feet along like echoes of Willie's hoof-beats.

The pair of them simply ignored Verne Booth, Fred Wachsmuth and Gunnar Nilson, another Finn who seemed to be there only to make it look like a good sized field. George Lermund of Boston college held on for a while, clinging to the heels of Nurmi, but he was not to last. After they had gone one and one-half miles, Lermund was also run out of the real competition and became a simple strange guy running for his health.

A couple of laps later, Nurmi had to pass Ritola because Willie seemed determined not to make the pace for him any longer without finding out just what Nurmi could do. But it was dangerous to let Paavo Nurmi get out in front so Ritola stepped forward again and found Paavo quite ready to let him do his heavy work. This way they whirled around and around Ritola's gaunt face gleaming with sweat, his long hair waving straight back like a mop, until just as they came to the end of the race, one, Nurmi turned loose his spring. Again the taxi hailed away from the stalled laundry wagon.

Again Nurmi evinced the magnificent strength and heart that enabled him to do such wonders in the Olympic games. Starting the last lap Nurmi had at least a quarter of a lap lead over his nearest competitor, the greatest middle distance runner in the world. After rounding the first turn he lezzed it a little harder and stretched the lead so that when he came to the end of the race he had the old world record of Joie Ray, he was nearly half a lap in front of Ritola. And he was not even blowing a puff of air.

Such grace and confidence, such form and power had never been witnessed before by the elderly, spectacled sharp in evening regalia, old athletes now turned to clogging and gun-toting as dimers and starters for the younger ones—men who have seen the best of them run, who were stationed about the infield to officiate at Paavo Nurmi's races.

They and the thousands around the track fixed their gaze on a short, light-built, well-proportioned athlete, with light curly hair and a fixed, slightly grimacing expression, who seemed able to run with an air of utter detachment, as though he only had to slide the gears of a machine to get speed out of his legs.

Although he did trail behind Ritola most of the way in the long race, letting Willie run himself down, he seemed to have absolutely no interest in what Ritola did and when Willie passed him he did not seem to care. He simply yielded the lead to him at the mile-and-one-half point, he passed his countryman as one stranger might pass another. He was running his own race, running against time as a golfer plays

Schedule Opens at North
Randall on 22d of June;
To Remain Here Five Days

Cleveland, Ohio, January 6.—Stewards of the grand circuit this morning adopted a schedule for the coming season that begins the harness horse racing campaign June 22 at North Randall (Cleveland), and terminates it October 17 at Atlanta, Ga. racing, eight of them being allotted to Ohio tracks.

North Randall's opening program will be one of two weeks and the August meeting on the same track will require two weeks for completion. Toledo and Columbus, each has a July week and Columbus, in addition, will entertain the grand circuit trotters and pacers for the last half of September.

After the Columbus windup for the Ohio season, the annual invasion of Kentucky will be made for a seven-day meeting at Lexington. The time allotment for Atlanta is such that five days directly after Lexington will be devoted to the final meeting of the year.

In their revisional work on Grand Circuit racing, the stewards this afternoon made provisions for registration of all horses brought to the racing places of members, arranged for at least three stewards to attend each race and substitute another if necessary, will permit any secretary to have claiming races as parts of any day's program.

Fees Stipulated.
It was stipulated that for all events, the entry and starting fees shall not exceed seven per cent of the amount to be raced for and that there shall be no deductions from money winners.

In no late-closing event will it be possible for any owner, agent or stable to start more than one horse in case the track is one where wagering is done.

Power was given either the starter or the judges to fine or suspend a disobedient driver or substitute one during the remainder of a race.

Judges Given Power.
Starting and regularly delegated judges were given power to fine drivers for disobedience and to remove a driver and substitute another for the balance of a race. It also was stipulated that every penalty imposed upon a driver, trainer, owner or horse at any meeting of the grand circuit shall be enforced strictly at all other meetings, unless modified, set aside or reversed by the board of stewards or the parent association to which final appeal may be taken.

Three stewards will constitute a court to which any disciplined driver may take immediate appeal. At least three visiting stewards will attend each meeting.

Must Observe Rules.
Grand circuit tracks, according to against par and it seemed to make absolutely no difference to him whether Ritola took a lead of five yards or five miles or fell behind. When he came near the end he turned loose the sprint that he had in his legs and the fact that he brought him home first, ahead of the record, was only incidental.

Record-Breaker.
It was hard for Ray to lose that first race, the mile, and he could not leave the building without remarking in his honest way that he had made Nurmi break his, Ray's own, world's record.

"I'm a little bit short of exercise," Ray said in the hearing of Nurmi in the reeking dressing room and not realizing, perhaps, that the Finn does not speak or understand English. "I have not been running much."

Nurmi might have replied that neither had he been running much and that he had never before run under a roof, but it was impossible for them to carry on a squabble in country tongues. Paavo told his rubber, a brother Finn, in grunting accents, as that gentleman beat him resoundingly on the chest with huge liniment-monished hands that he might have clipped another full second or two off the mile record if the track had been about six laps to the mile instead of 11, which would have cost him less time on the turn, and he said, too, that the proximity of the crowd, in solid rising array from floor to skylight made him slightly nervous.

Ray jumped away in front of the mile run began but Nurmi's schedule was such that he had to pass Joe on the first lap. He took a position about a stride in front of Ray and ran along that way until about the fifth when Ray stepped into the lead and Nurmi fell back to second position, running mechanically, with no swing of his arms or swag of his legs, no head rolling or wide flinging of the heels. And so they scampered along to the tenth lap, when Nurmi shot a charge into his ankles and drew away so sharply that Ray was caught on the flat of his feet and left in the rear, a hopeless loser.

Music Club and Drama League To Present Well-Known Artists

Interesting and cultural affairs feature the social program today, centering the attention of several hundred Atlantans who are keenly interested in the development of the artistic life of the city. The members of the Atlanta Music club will gather this morning in the ballroom of the Atlanta Biltmore to hear a program of exceptional interest and charm. Alex Keese, the popular violinist and conductor of the Howard theater orchestra, is chairman of this morning's program and will be assisted by Ethel Beyer, pianist; Jose Gasca, cellist; W. B. Holmes, French horn player, and Mrs. Alex Keese, soprano.

In the afternoon Mrs. Chauncey Smith, well-known dramatic reader of the city, will be presented to the members of the Atlanta Drama league at the Biltmore. Mrs. Smith is one of Atlanta's most charming and gifted dramatic readers and her reading this afternoon of "The Swan," by Franz Molnar, should prove a delightful interpretation of this amusing comedy.

Habersham hall, the magnificent chapter house of the Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., will be the scene this afternoon of the first of a series of informal teas to be given by the members of this patriotic organization. Friends and members will gather in the early afternoon for a game of bridge or mah jongg to be followed by tea and a social hour.

Debutantes will by no means be crowded into the background, for one glance at the daily social calendar on this page will show them being central figures at an elaborate luncheon at which Mrs. Guy Woodford will entertain, followed by tea at the home of Miss Louise Nelson, one of their own members. In the evening they will attend the supper-dance at the Biltmore, these delightful midweek affairs being inaugurated by them in the early fall.

Miss Josephine King, of Baltimore, Md., who is the guest of Miss Maria Brown, popular debutante of this winter, will be complimented by her hostess this evening at the supper-dance and will share honors with the debutantes at a number of social events during her visit.

Miss Florence O'Beir will entertain the members of the "12 Originals" at her home on Ridgewood road.

Miss Lillian McClelland, a bride-elect, will be complimented with a shower-tea this afternoon at which Mrs. John F. McClelland will be hostess at her home on Park avenue.

"Follies" Cast Ready To Meet Ned Wayburn January 16

BY MARGARET WHITMAN.

"Will you be in the 'Follies'?" was the question which greeted each member of the Junior league upon her arrival at the first meeting of the new year, held Tuesday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving club. In the majority of cases the answer was "yes," and immediately a smile would adorn the face of Mrs. Edwin Peeples, who, as chairman of the cast committee, seeks not only to make this production far eclipse any amateur one ever staged in Atlanta, but also to present to Ned Wayburn, nationally-known producer, who will direct the "Follies," a cast representative of beauty and talent for which Atlanta is so widely known.

With the arrival of Mr. Wayburn, January 16, rehearsals will begin at once and through the courtesy of the management of the Biltmore hotel will be held in this hostelry. The league will also have an office in the Biltmore during the three weeks of the rehearsals and anyone desiring information concerning tickets, costumes, etc., call Miss Caroline Nicolson, room 13, Biltmore hotel.

One of the most important features of the Tuesday meeting was the announcement made by Mrs. Charles Freeman concerning the prices of the tickets for each performance. For the opening night at the Atlanta theater, which will be Monday, February 16, the first two rows will be $10 a seat. The next seven rows will be $5 a seat and the rest of the seats downstairs will be $2.50 each. The first two rows in the balcony will be $2 a seat, and the others $1.50 each. All seats in the gallery will be 50 cents each. Tickets for the second night, February 17, include the following prices: The first three rows, $5 each; the next seven rows, $2.50 each, and the rest of the downstairs $2 a seat. The balcony prices of $1.50 and $1 will continue through the remainder of the week. Beginning Wednesday evening and continuing through the week, the seats downstairs in the theater will be $2.50 each for the first five rows and $2 each for the others. Saturday matinee the balcony seats will be $1 and 50 cents each. Tickets may be secured from any member of the Junior league, and those wishing $10 and $5 seats may secure same by calling Mrs. Charles E. Freeman, Hemlock 0153. All tickets will have to be exchanged at the box office of the Atlanta theater on or after February 12.

Mr. Wayburn will hold his first rehearsal Friday evening, January 16, at 8 o'clock, at the Biltmore, at which time he will assemble all of the girls who will take part. The first rehearsal for the men will be Saturday evening.

Mrs. Eugene Harrington, general chairman of the "Follies," has called a meeting at her home for Tuesday morning, January 13, at 10:30 o'clock, at which time she wishes all the chairmen of the various "Follies" committees to be present. Friday morning, January 9, at 10:30 o'clock, she will meet every member of the advertising committee at her home.

Miss Tupper Presides.
Miss Henrietta Tupper, past vice president, presided at the meeting, which was opened by the reading of the minutes by Mrs. Eugene Harrington, recording secretary. This was followed by the report of Mrs. Charles E. Freeman, treasurer.

Reports of the various committees were heard. Miss Marion Darrah called a meeting of the Braille committee for this morning at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Willis Ragan and Mrs. Hunter Muse, of the Good Samaritan clinic committee, told of a luncheon given at the English Avenue school before the school closed for the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Bolling Jones, III, chairman of the hospital 48 committee, asked for more members and also related the splendid and untiring efforts of her co-workers. Mrs. Grover Middlebrooks, chairman of the Christmas basket committee who, with her co-workers, distributes each year from 40 to 50 beautifully-filled baskets to poor families who otherwise would be denied a Christmas dinner, said that this year 45 families were visited and given Christmas baskets, and that 250 children were given toys, candy and articles of clothing.

Members Present.

Following the meeting tea was served. Those present were Mrs. Scott Warren, Jr., Mrs. Eugene Harrington, Mrs. C. E. Freeman, Mrs. Lawrence Willet, Mrs. Willis Ragan, Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. Dana Belser, Miss Elizabeth Hawkins, Mrs. Lawrence Quinn, Miss Edgarda Horton, Mrs. Edwin Peeples, Mrs. Finley, Mrs. Bruce Woodruff, Mrs. John Knox, Mrs. De Sales Harrison, Miss Margaret Nelson, Mrs. Wimberly Peters, Mrs. Jackson Dick, Miss Frances Brown, Mrs. George Raine, Mrs. Van Hall, Mrs. George Campbell, Mrs. Charles Wood, Mrs. Kendrick Scott, Mrs. Lon Grove, Mrs. Robert Troutman, Mrs. Walter Elcock, Mrs. Wilmer Moore, Jr., Mrs. Tom Swann, Mrs. Perin Nicolson, Miss Caroline Nicolson, Mrs. James

Orient, and this was an occasion for her friends to welcome her home.

Beautiful spring flowers were used as a decoration and, placed in baskets and bowls, and arranged on tables, mantels and consoles, made a lovely background for this affair.

The tea table was overlaid with hand-embroidered cloth of Swatow linen, which was brought from the Orient by Mrs. Emerson. Mrs. Scott was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. R. E. Jennings, of New York and Michigan; Mrs. Joseph C. Stevenson, Mrs. Blair Armstrong, Mrs. Phinix Calhoun and Miss Nellie Hightower.

Assisting in serving were Miss Betty Watson, daughter of the hostess; Miss Marion Calhoun, Miss Jane Morrow and Miss Barbara Case.

Mrs. Scott received her guests wearing a becoming model of blue velvet draped to one side and caught with a rhinestone and velvet ornament, and her corsage was of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Emerson was charming in a powder blue georgette beaded in crystals.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

No Waste to Milk.
It is difficult at times to regulate the exact amount of milk required, but by no means let the surplus go to waste. If you find you have a quart or more on hand, make a rice pudding, a custard or a dish with creamed sauce. Another pleasing way to use it is to have a slice of ham for dinner and bake it in milk in the oven. When the milk covering it cooks away, add more. Let bake for about an hour. Should your milk turn sour before you have a chance to use it, gingerbread, sour milk biscuits, hot cakes and cottage cheese are all good.

House Notes.
Oil paintings should be covered before the room is swept.
The person who prepares food cannot keep his hands too clean.
A piece of fried bacon rind will bait a mouse trap better than cheese.

Astrological Lecture

To Be Given.

The subject of the astrological lecture for Wednesday afternoon will be "The Influence of the Planet Mercury in the Twelve Houses." Alan Leo, the noted astrologer, says: "Man is a correlation of chemical physical forces, as well as a correlation of spiritual powers. The body of man would never be penetrable were it not for the spirit (divine magnetism), nor would the spirit be permanent were it not for the body, nor could these two act one upon another without the soul, for the spirit is an invisible thing, nor doth it ever appear without another garment, which garment is the soul." Each planet has its share in building, preserving, and destruction of the body and the soul of man, whose principles are continuous under the laws of planetary influence. Mercury is particularly ruler over the mind and is symbolical of Divine Wisdom stretched on the cross of matter. The lecture is free and will be held at 4 o'clock at 313 Grand Theater building.

Good Taste in Dressing

THE REAL SECRET OF BEING WELL GROOMED

There was a time when to have an artistic appearance, in the truer and finer sense of the word, meant to let nature have its way—or, so we were told. But today, if we let nature have its way, our "artistic appearance" would be in line with free art and free verse, and other shocking practices. Nowadays, nature, supervised and gently corrected by art, is the method used to gain an artistic effect.

And to supervise and correct nature means to "polish up" the points that the careless creature has overlooked. It means to begin at the top of one's person, taking care of the hair. Is your hair clean looking? Do you wash it at least every two or three weeks, so as to keep it clean and healthy. Brush it thoroughly every day. If preparing breakfast and getting the family off to work, you do this in the morning, take the time at night before you go to bed. Brush it at least 100 times. The comforting part about such a habit is that it soon becomes a fixed one. Far from neglecting the nightly brushing of your hair, which, after all, takes not more than three or four minutes, you will soon find you have become a victim to the habit. You have a guilty feeling at the very contemplation of overlooking that daily rite!

And then the skin. Remember, I am talking to the busy woman of moderate means. I know that she has very little time. But no woman who really cares, can be too busy to neglect her appearance. Try rubbing a good cold cream on your face two or three times each week. Take it off with a rough towel, then wash your face first with water as hot as you can stand it and then with cold water. The very first morning after you have tried this before-bed treatment your skin will have a softer, fresher look.

Watch your hands! Don't feel that you have to hide them under the table because of their contrast with the whiteness of the cloth. Do you know that lemon rubbed into the fingers and nails will lighten stains. Do you know that a good lotion, or even cold cream, will help to soften your hands and keep them white? Do you know that loose-fitting, comfortable gloves can be had for as low as 20 cents a pair, and that sometimes rubber gloves can be found for the same price?

Yes, you probably know all this, and the rest of what is written here. Only—only is your knowledge theoretical, or do you put it into practice? To be well groomed goes deeper than merely having well-fitting and well-cared for clothes, and neat shoes and gloves. The body must first be properly looked after, so that it, too, is well-groomed. How well does the smartest frock look with stained, red hands and disfigured nails? How becoming is the most fetching hat if below it obtrude straggling ends of hair?

Every woman has an inalienable birthright—the right to make the most of the body that has been given her. And pride, and an understanding of the fundamentals of the care of the body, enable her to fulfill her birthright. She owes this to herself not through foolish vanity, but for her own self-respect.

BEAUTY CHATS

ASTRINGENT LOTIONS.

There are hundreds of thousands of astringent lotions on the market, at least 700 of which any woman can make up for herself. As almost every skin needs an astringent, perhaps a list of a few would be useful.

First of all, there is ice out of the icebox. After the face has been washed and rubbed well with cream, and the surplus cream wiped off, roll a little ice in an old bit of muslin, and rub this over and over the face. Used without cream it might dry and chafe the skin, used this way, it shrinks large pores, tightens lax and sagging muscles, and is the ideal astringent. It brings blood up to the skin too, and gives a dead complexion.

The easiest astringent is a "milky emulsion" made by adding tincture of benzoin, drop by drop, to either plain boiled water or to rose water until a quite cloudy, milky fluid is obtained. It is a very pretty astringent with is slightly opalescent effect, and looks well in fancy clear glass bottles on the bathroom shelf. This can be put over the face after it has been washed and dried and used once every day.

Toilet water is astringent and so is toilet vinegar. These can be made at home. Witch hazel is a cooling, refreshing astringent, very mild in action and pleasant after a hot day's work.

A soothing, healing astringent can be made by adding a tablespoonful of powdered camphor to a half pint size bottle of rose water but some people object to the camphor odor. Salt water is a really wonderful astringent, a saturated solution of sea salt or table salt, and cold water, kept in a bottle, and rubbed on the face will tone up the skin splendidly. This costs almost nothing.

M. H.: One very good way to get rid of bad blackheads is to hold cloths wrung from hot water over the skin for a few minutes until the pores are open, then to rub in quite a bit of powdered oatmeal. Wet the fingertips and dip in the meat and rub this down over the face. You can rub in a lot of it. Rub up with hot water; the meat takes up the oily grease of the blackheads and brings it out. Rinse in cooler water and then apply an astringent. Ice is splendid. Do this every day and if the skin gets dry, rub cold cream on at night.

Every skin needs an astringent.

J. J.: Send me a letter with a self-addressed, stamped envelope enclosed and I will send you the formula for my hair tonic. This will stop your hair from falling and make it thicker.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in due turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be inclosed with the question.—The Editor.

XV. HOW DOES IT END?

(Drawing: Tiny Tim's Costume)

Did Scrooge keep on with his wonderful new life and did Tiny Tim live? Yes, yes, yes: Scrooge not better as he went along and Tiny Tim grew stronger and was comfortable, though still lame. Scrooge was a second, third, fourth and fifth father to the little crippled child and delighted to carry Tiny Tim on his shoulder, as Bob Cratchit did.

More and more did Scrooge's heart become filled with laughter, though he had no further intercourse with the spirits or with the ghost of Jacob Marley; and it was always said of him that he knew how to keep Christmas well, if any man alive possessed that knowledge. May that be truly said of us, and all of us? And so, as Tiny Tim observed, God bless us, Every one. (Did you like this story? Please write and tell the editor of this paper if you did. Red Hair and Blue Sea

By Stanley R. Osborn.

SYNOPSIS.
Palmyra Tree, on board the yacht Rainbow, which is leaving the California coast for the south sea, is started to see a sliver of land with a black suit on it. Through her port window, Palmyra is loved by two men, John Thurston and Van Buren. She is no certain which she loves.

Palmyra determines to smother the owner of that sinister hand, but tells no one her purpose. She discovers Pompey Burke, who confesses he is a smuggler of coolies and opium. Burke permits her a glimpse of a savage brown man, Olive, hiding with him. Palmyra does the savage brown man a good turn.

Palmyra gradually convinces herself she is in love with Van Buren. Burke, who is a smuggler, is a man of a different kind. The party lands on an uninhabited island, and Olive leaves the yacht at Honolulu, and Palmyra's engagement to Van Buren is announced. Burke appears on the "Pigeon of Noah" and promises to rescue Palmyra. Palmyra goes on board alone to investigate, and finds herself a prisoner. Burke calls away with her, telling her it was he who wrecked the Rainbow. Thurston and Van Buren start at dawn in a vain pursuit. Burke outlines his plan to Palmyra of making her queen of Tanna island, and grows ugly at her refusal to listen to his love-making. He decides to leave her alone on a deserted island for a few months with barely enough food to last until he shall return for her. In terror Palmyra faces her first night alone.

In the morning she sees Olive, the brown man, swimming toward her. Exhausted from a long swim, he falls asleep. When he awakes he attempts sign language. Finally he communicates to her the idea that he and she are to swim away together in the limitless ocean. Making her a life preserver of coconut husks, they start their trip across an empty ocean. They rest at night on a barren beach. In the morning Olive motions her to lie down while he starts reconnoitering the island. Palmyra manages to send a message for help, and again they start their ocean journey. Burke's ship is again in pursuit of them. By clever maneuvering Olive eludes Burke, and Palmyra is delighted to find they are landlubbers. Olive falls asleep, and Palmyra, in terror of his knife, steals it from him and leaves it behind on the island.

INSTALLMENT XXXIX.

PALMYRA'S SHIP COMES.

She looked at the stick that had brought them so near tragedy.

There was something sweet in the gesture.

smooth by use. She had never heard of the drun, or ark, the husking stake of mangrove wood. But she surmised correctly that, driven into the ground ashore, it, rather than the knife, was the usual implement.

After Olive had husked several of the nuts, he opened two by peck- them with the sharp end of a third, trepanning them as neatly as a surgeon.

The girl accepted food and drink humbly. She was, she reflected, like a bear she'd heard of, with its face full of porcupine quills. Starving, it had cornered a settler in its desperate need or air. The man had understood. But as he plucked the last of the quills, the beast began to snarl and snap; and in ingratitude but in fright.

Palmyra was perceiving that most of the ghastly blood-lettings which have sustained the intercourse of man have had their origin, not in the murder lust, but in misunderstanding and in fear.

She would have struck her knife to the heart of this brown man—and he had meant only to give her food!

Her eyes filled. With a girlish impulse she thrust her hand into her dress, and drew out the weapon which she had carried concealed since the start of the journey; the knife which had been thrust through her stateroom door by a brown hand. She would make amends.

There was something sweet in the gesture, in the expression with which she offered the knife. But the savage accepted her surrender in the serene seeming unconsciousness of the Buddha when their devotees lay before them gifts that may have meant months, perhaps years of sacrifice.

She had expected at least surprise. His restraint toward her had convinced her that other fingers than his had pried at the Lupe-a-Noa's cabin skylight and dropped the blade. But shortly she realized he would have known anyway, for she must have revealed its possession when, following their swim, she cut herself free of the coconut floats.

The girl returned dutifully to scanning the ocean for Burke's top-sails. Herself alone she would have thought of the schooner as worlds away by now. But the eyes of the brown man seldom for long left the skyline. This being so, she could only expect the enemy at any moment. If the infallible Olive looked for Burke to reappear, then, of a certainty, Burke would reappear.

But, though she watched the sea, the girl recognized her fatality as a lookout. This was since she had given a startled cry, and pointing, had proclaimed the Pigeon of Noah. Olive, surprisingly, had seemed at a loss; unable to make out the little triangle of white so plain to her. And then—she had discovered what he had probably known for an hour: that it was a cloud.

As they skimmed along today they picked up presently another island. Whether this was part of last night's lagoon, Palmyra did not know, but she soon saw Olive was keeping well away. A lone fisherman they sighted in his canoe, but her companion at once lowered the sail and paddled hard apart, so they passed too wide for observation. No fisherman should testify to strange canoes and stranger passengers.

Sight of this place, however, brought again to the girl's lips a question which often had trembled there but never found utterance. Always before, when she would have asked of the island of Jaluit, doubt, fear had silenced her. Eagerly as she might wish to confirm her hope, she had been held back by a lurking dread of its annihilation.

But today, in the mood following her brutal misjudgment of the brown man, hope had risen into what seemed certainty. Strange indeed as it might appear, he had sprung from the void as a knight errant to carry her to the place of refuge.

And now, in this new sense of trust, she turned quickly to him, her cheeks flushing, and spoke his name as nearly as she could in the way he liked: "O-lee-vay."

He looked up surprised. "O-lee-vay," she repeated—"Ja—Jaluit!"

He did not comprehend. She tried the pronunciation with varying inflections. Then, perception.

The savage grinned, raised an arm and, cheerfully informative—pointed astern.

The girl caught her breath. "O, no, no!" she cried in panic. "You don't understand. Ja-luit—Ja-luit—Ja-luit."

But all too plainly he did understand. And he was sailing directly away from her one chance of rescue.

Slowly the girl turned from this being. Her instinctive trust destroyed, she realized only now how much her hope of Jaluit had sustained her. She was—crushed.

For two or three hours they flew in silence.

Then Palmyra was roused, startled, by an exclamation behind her. When she looked, the savage pointed broad of the starboard bow. She could see nothing, and he had to make the sign of the scar before she grasped that the Pigeon of Noah was in sight.

But the girl seemed to have no reserve of emotion left to bestow. As she gazed dully out over the water her strongest feeling, perhaps, was a curiosity as to how he could identify this craft, invisible to her. Were all vessels different as to their topmasts, or was it that no other sail could be expected on this empty ocean?

Palmyra did not long try to make out the schooner. Rather, she faced away and sat, her eyes fixed mistily on the horizon to port, with its low lying manifestation of cloud.

In her bitter disillusionment she felt it made little difference now whether or no the white masts overhauled the brown.

At time went on she was aware that the savage kept his gaze to starboard, though he had not yet found it necessary to lower his sail. But she hardly cared.

She continued to sit, outwardly submissive, inwardly alive with passionate rebellion at her fate. It seemed unbelievable that, in all the teeming world of man, none should know her terrible need, come in this moment of crisis to snatch her away.

As she stared unblinkingly across the sea, the low black streamer of cloud unavoidably, in the intensity of her desire, suggested to her mind the smoke of a vessel racing to her aid.

The cloud as is now and then the case, was not unlike the smudge from a tunnel. And, in her fatigue, her helplessness, the impossibility of the thing gave to this product of her imagination an extraordinary power.

She saw the steamer rising from the ocean. She climbed its ladder to the rail. And there, triumphant on its deck, she was safe!

And in that moment she knew she could not be hard on the brown man. She would not demand his punishment. Only a savage after all—no knight errant of the deep sea—his very savagery was his excuse. He had known no better, was not to be blamed. Yet he'd been kind to her and he had saved her from Burke.

At the parting she would thank him. She would load his canoe with gifts. Or, better still, though he'd carried her wide of her own port of refuge, she would give him passage to some island beyond reach of the murderous Pompey.

And then, suddenly, Palmyra Tree was back in the canoe, her heart beating to suffocation. For her dream was not a dream. The cloud was not a cloud. It was smoke, smoke! smoke!!

Her ship had come!

Total stock sales, 1,792,700.

New York, January 6.—With the technical position of the market improved by yesterday's sharp reaction, stock prices rallied briskly today under the stimulus of lower money rates and the announcement of higher dividends on the common stocks of the Atchison railroad and the American Smelting and Refining company. Net gains in the active issues ranged from 1 to 6 points on total sales slightly in excess of one and three-quarters million shares.

Some irregularity was apparent at the opening, but the general list soon swung upward behind the railroad shares with a brisk demand noted for the eastern carriers. New York Central crossed 124 to the highest price in 15 years and then slipped back to 123 1/2, where it was up 1/32 on the day. Net gains of 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 points were recorded by Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific preferred, Norfolk & Western, Reading, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Southern Railway, St. Paul preferred, Denver, Rio Grande & Western preferred, Louisville & Nashville and the Wabash preferred issues. Jersey Central and New York Central, however, were down 1/4 and 1/2 units, respectively, each on a small turnover. Shares responded to reports of further improvement from the steel centers. U. S. Steel common closing nearly 2 points higher at 122 3/8 after having sold half a point earlier. Republic, Gulf States and Sloss Sheffield steels showed net gains ranging from 7-8 to 2 1/2 points.

American Car and Foundry, which had been in a 13-day yesterday, recovered 6 points of its loss. Net gains of 3 to 6 points also were recorded by General Electric, Sears-Roebuck, Universal Pipe, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, and American Lumber. Other gains: Brooklyn Edison, Fisher Body, Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke and Westinghouse Airbrake.

Call money opened at 3 1/2 per cent and then slipped to 3, where it closed. Time money and commercial rates remained unchanged but funds were in more plentiful supply.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary with the rise in sterling halted by the heavy selling of that currency in London. Demand sterling which sold around $4.76 3/4 yesterday ruled about a cent below the high.

RED CROSS HEADS
DISSOLVE OFFICES

James L. Fieser, vice chairman of the American National Red Cross, accompanied by Robert E. Bondy, director of field service, arrived in Atlanta to complete plans for the dissolution of Southern Red Cross headquarters here on February 16.

W. H. C. Logan, manager of the southern division, will work out final plans for the centralization of administration in Washington.

Today last the dissolution of the division office here would not in any way affect the 700 southern chapters now under its jurisdiction.

Logan stated, "is but the final step in the centralization of administration which was begun in 1921.

Waynesboro, Ga., January 6.—(Special.)—The will of the late Judge S. D. Warnock, executor of his estate was admitted to probate here for $100,000 and $125,000.

He gives to his relatives amounts ranging from $1,000 up to several thousand dollars each. His public bequests are: One thousand dollars to the trustees of the Baptist church in Waynesboro toward their building fund; $3,000 to the trustees of the Methodist church toward building a new school room for the women; $1,000 to the Methodist Orphanage home in Macon; $10,000 to South ern Methodist Episcopal church, the name of which is to be used for the building.

All territory now in the southern division, along with the rest of the eastern part of the United States will be served by the staff at national headquarters. Branch offices will be established at St. Louis and San Francisco.

In addition to stimulating chapter work by direct contact with national headquarters and insuring stronger field supervision, Mr. Fieser stated that the move will effect an annual

BACHMAN DROPPED FROM COMMITTEE

Mayor Walter A. Sims today will appoint a new chairman of the special traction committee of city council to succeed Alderman J. R. Bachman, ousted Monday after having served as chairman of the committee since December, 1923.

While the mayor refused to give any indication of his selection of the new chairman, it is predicted that Councilman Frank H. Reynolds, of the Eighth ward, who took office
Monday night, will be given the post.
The entire committee was abolished at the last meeting of the 1924 city council, Saturday afternoon, but Mayor Sims indicated Tuesday that all members of the old committee with the exception of Mr. Bachman, will be reappointed.

Committee Abolished.

The committee was abolished so that James L. Wells and J. A. Beall, whose terms in council expired Monday night, might be appointed members of the new committee. They are familiar with the work and have spent more than a year studying the Georgia Railway & Power company's refined petition. They are not familiar with all recommendations of the Beeler report.

Alderman J. L. McLendon and Councilman W. C. Jenkins, the other members of last year's committee, probably will be named to serve again, the mayor indicated.

In discussing his decision not to reappoint Mr. Bachman to membership on the committee, the mayor said:
"While I appreciate the arduous work of the committee, I believe he has given all the time from his business that the city has the right to ask for. It is my belief that such duties should be divided, as far as possible,
among members of council."

Bachman Is Silent.

Alderman Bachman, when notified of the mayor's statement, had no statement to make, explaining why he had not been notified formally and would have nothing to say until that time.

In his annual message to council, the mayor urged immediate action on the traction problem, and he stated
Tuesday that, with all due respect to Mr. Bachman and his ability, infusion of new blood into the committee might result in quicker action.

It is expected that the committee will make recommendations at the next meeting of council concerning practically every request of the power company. The appraisal of the company's holdings, prepared by the Beeler organization, has not been completed yet, and for that reason, no report could be made by the committee to the 1924 council.

The valuation report probably will be received by the committee either this week or during the early part of next week.

History of Break.

Prior to the election last fall, Mayor Sims and Alderman Bachman were on the friendly terms. The mayor appointed Mr. Bachman to the chairmanship of the traction committee of council, the most important post at his disposal.

The first break between the two came during the majority primary.
When Alderman Bachman announced that he had accepted the management of the campaign of former Mayor Key, who opposed Mayor Sims, the chief executive called upon Alderman Bachman to resign chairmanship of the finance committee. This Mr. Bachman did.

Up to this time Alderman Bachman had been one of the leading figures in the council, having been appointed in 1924 to several other important committees, including leadership of the special traction committee.
At the first meeting Monday night of the 1925 council Mayor Sims gave
Mr. Bachman only four minutes appointments, all considered minor ones.
